Gulf's great news that'll knock you out of the ball park

Announcing Gulf's new patented HT process to make better motor oils.

Here's how our new patented HydroTreating (HT) process works. On the left, base stock refined the old way. On the right, crystal clear base stock refined by Gulf's new HT process. Selected additives are then blended with this clear base stock to produce high quality motor oils. Since we begin with a better base stock we end up with a better product. Motor Oils may all look the same but now there's a difference.

Laboratory tests at Gulf's Sheridan Park Research Centre have shown that the motor oils produced from HT base stocks can benefit car owners by giving:

- improved resistance to oil degradation for longer life
- greater viscosity control which reduces thickening
- easier cold weather starting
- reduced sludging

You will recognize Gulf's new HydroTreated motor oil when you see the HT symbol of lubricant excellence. Look for it coming soon.

Former Philadelphia Philly manager Mayo Smith once played the outfield for the long-gone Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League. And a roomie and golfing pal, Don Ross, snapped up grounders and line drives at third base for the rival Buffalo Bisons.

One evening in the Fleet Street Flats (as the old ball park was called) during a tight Buffalo-Toronto game, Smith reached third with Leafs' potential go-ahead run.

Ross called "time out" and went in to talk to the Bison pitcher. On his return, he struck up a casual exchange about their golfing exploits with Smith who took a short lead off third, his eyes on the Buffalo thrower.

Edging between Smith and third base, Ross produced the ball, tagged the Leaf out and said, "Hey, Mayo, betcha never saw a golf ball as big as this one!"

The moral of this true story is simple: in baseball as in driving, it pays to know exactly what's going on around you.

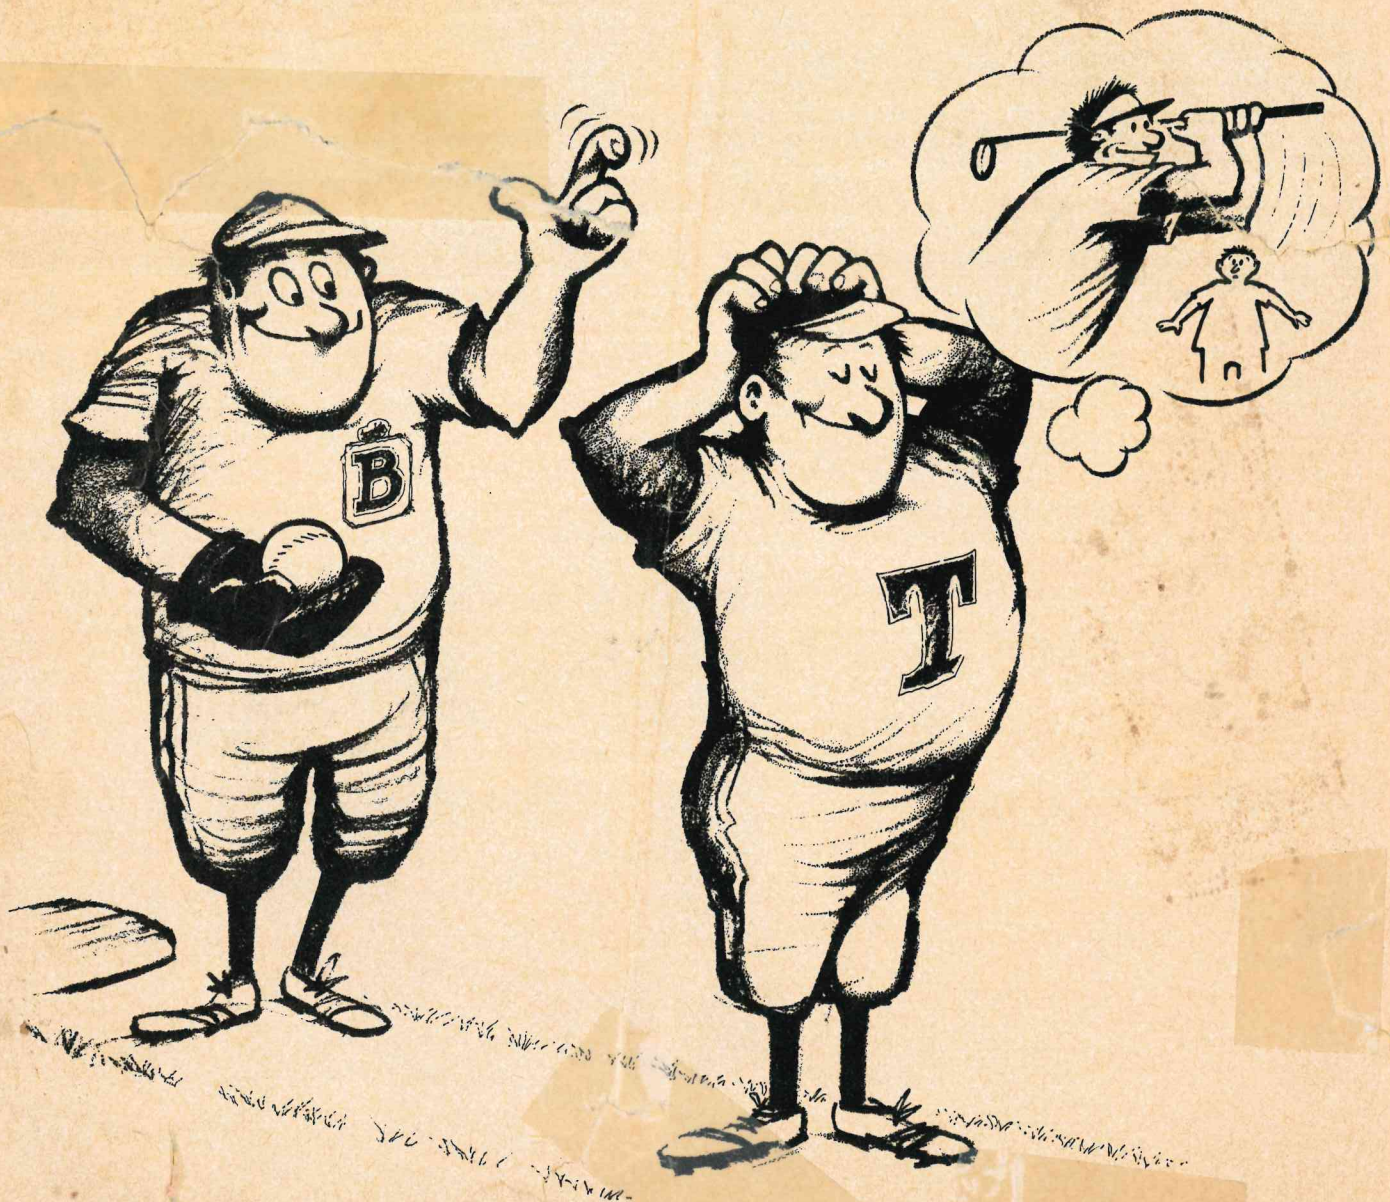

So, play it safe.

Major League Canadians

The Land of Snow has hit the big time. Canada now has two major league teams, one representing each of the two circuits.

But baseball in Canada has a long and glorious history, dating back to the time of the Civil War when Guelph, Ontario won the first 'World Championship' game ever played. And in 1877 a London team won the very first minor league championship (International Association).

Though relatively few Canadian players have made it to the major leagues (some for only one or two appearances) many of those to break into the big leagues have enjoyed remarkable careers. Canadians have been batting champions, All-Stars, winning managers and one even led a successful revolt on established baseball in the 1880's.

But ask most Canadians about Canadian players and most will give you the same old myths.

The myths? First, that all Canadian players are pitchers. Second, if they aren't pitchers, they're 'good field-no hit' players. And third, that baseball is controlled by American-born managers and executives.

Not one of these is true.

Canadians have always been active - and powerful - at all levels of major league baseball.

Canadians in the majors today include Fergie Jenkins, of the Texas Rangers, who has won 20 or more games seven times and ranks in the top ten for strikeouts in baseball's all-time lists. Fergie is the best pitcher Canada has ever produced, though one other man back in 1910 had a shot at being one of the greatest ever in baseball. Detroit's John Hiller, from Scarborough, has come back from illness to rank as the Tiger's most prolific and successful reliever. Reggie Cleveland, now with Milwaukee, has been an effective pitcher for several major league teams.

But how about Terry Puhl? The Houston outfielder, who hails from the plains of Saskatchewan, batted .289 for the Astros in 1978 after leading the National League in batting for three weeks in mid-season. Puhl was also an All-Star selection. Dave McKay, a Vancouver native, was the Jays' regular second baseman with a .238 average.

Is baseball in Canada really being controlled by Americans? Four chairmen of major league baseball teams are Canadian born: R. Howard Webster of the Blue Jays, Charles Bronfman of the Expos, Calvin Griffith of the Minnesota Twins and Donald Grant of the Mets were all born in Quebec.

There are no Canadians managing in the major leagues at this time, but three minor league teams are managed by Canucks. Jimmy Williams, a Toronto boy, managed the Class A Miami club for the Baltimore Orioles in 1978, and Sarnia's Bill Slack managed Boston's Winston-Salem Class A club. At the Triple-A level, Tom Burgess manages the Richmond Braves, an affiliate of the Atlanta Braves, for whom he coached in 1978. Burgess is from London, Ontario.

See? Myths abound about Canadians. It's true that the majority of Canadians in the minor leagues today are pitchers (22 of 32), and that for the last few decades most outstanding Canadians have been pitchers, but that doesn't mean that all we produce are mound artists.

Let's take a stroll through baseball history and see just where Canadians stand!

One William Phillips, from New Brunswick, is considered the 'first' Canadian player to reach the major leagues. Phillips spent eleven years with Cleveland (NL), Brooklyn and Kansas City (American Association) between 1879 and 1891. Phillips was a fine fielder and a good hitter.

The most intriguing of these early players was Arthur Irwin, born in Toronto on Valentine's Day, 1858.

Irwin devoted nearly 40 years of his life to baseball, playing many roles on and off the field. He debuted in 1880 and played for 13 years, considered by many one of that era's premier shortstops.

Irwin is credited with inventing the padded fielder's glove in 1884, while playing with two broken fingers.

While captain of the Phillies in the 1880's, Irwin wrote a book on scientific baseball playing and posed

London's George Gibson (above) had a successful managing career south of the border. Gibson was one of Pittsburgh's greatest catchers, and after his playing days ended he managed the Toronto Leafs, the Pirates, and the Cubs. for the photographs that illustrated his instructions.

He led the short-lived players' revolt of 1889 against the arbitrary salary ceiling imposed by baseball moguls. The Players' League formed by the striking players disintegrated when the players were tempted back to the established leagues by the offer of much higher pay. Irwin's revolt was, therefore, successful.

During his career he managed Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Boston, and umpired for two years in the National League before retiring for good. He made enough money playing baseball to buy the Kansas City Blues (AA) and part of the Toronto Maple Leafs. Irwin managed the Leafs twice, and one of his clubs in the 1890's is considered one of the best minor league clubs ever assembled.

James 'Tip' O'Neill was known as the Woodstock Wonder - a farm boy from Woodstock, Ontario who for several years was the best hitter in baseball.

Tall and good-looking, O'Neill played for the flamboyant St. Louis Browns in the 1880's. With O'Neill's help, the Browns won four consecutive championships. O'Neill himself twice led the league in batting and home runs.

O'Neill batted .492 in 1887, the highest average ever recorded by a major league player. However that was the year that the league experimented with a new rule - counting walks as hits. Poor Tip's phenomenal average was erased forever when the league discontinued the new rule, though he is still listed in the Book of Baseball Records.

O'Neill batted .337 in 1889, then joined the abortive players' strike. He returned to the Browns a year later, but they were disenchanted with their hero and traded him to Cincinnati. The Woodstock Wonder batted less than .300 for the first time in his career and retired to Montreal, where he ran a tavern until his death in 1915.

His lifetime average of .326 is the best ever by a Canadian.

During this period William Henry Watkins, another prodigal Canadian, managed the Detroit Nationals to the National League championship. Watkins was 28. He started managing at the tender age of 24 with Indianapolis, and piloted Pittsburgh and Kansas City as well.

The greatest Canadian-born manager was, without a doubt, George "Moon" Gibson, a native of London.

Gibson was an iron-armed, hard working catcher for the Pirates and Giants for twelve years. Never a .300 hitter, he was a dangerous clutch hitter and was also outstanding at developing young pitchers.

After Gibson finished his playing career with the Giants in 1918, he managed the Toronto Maple Leafs for a period, then went on to manage the Pirates and the Chicago Cubs. He coached with Washington for a time, and ended his career as a scout for the Pirates. Gibson died in London in 1967.

Back to the myth about powerless Canadians for a moment: There have been many Canadian umpires, and few men have more power in baseball than the umpire!

In 1879, Tom Gilleen of London became the first umpire to accept pay for his work. Gilleen was paid the princely sum of $5.00 for officiating at a National League game; his day's work included calling all balls and strikes and all plays (since only one umpire worked a game in that era) while making sure that the rowdy giants on both teams didn't kill each other or him, and at the same time defending himself from the crowd.

Yet another Canadian was responsible for improving the lot of the umpire and setting up modern systems of umpiring that are in use today.

Robert Emslie, born in Guelph, served baseball for sixty years. Only Connie Mack served longer.

Emslie started his career in baseball as a brilliant young pitcher. In 1884 he won 32 games for Baltimore; in 1886 he joined the Toronto Maple Leafs, the city's first International League team. An arm injury ended his pitching career early, and he turned to officiating.

He was a National League umpire for 33 years and later sat on the NL's umpire advisory board, which scouted and trained umpires. Along with Bill Klem, Emslie is credited with improving the lot of the umpire by working for better pay and working conditions.

Bald from an early age, Emslie was known as 'The Wig' and 'Blind Bob'. The inimitable John McGraw was a perennial enemy of Emslie, who once fined McGraw $2500 for shouting an insult about Emslie's toupee to the jeering crowd.

'Blind Bob' had the last laugh, though. When the National League ordered all umpires to take an eye examination, Emslie had the keenest eyesight of them all - at age 52.

Back to the players.

One Canadian, Nig Clarke (from Amherstberg) had a remarkable outing in 1902 with Corsicana of the Texas League. Clarke hit eight homers in eight times at bat to lead his team to a 51-3 defeat of the rival Texarcana club.

Clarke played with Cleveland

just slightly ahead of our time from 1905 to 1911, and of his 390 major league hits, only six were home runs.

Now this myth about Canadian pitchers has a foundation, and that foundation might be Russell Ford - a farm boy from Brandon, Manitoba, who had the potential to be one of the greatest pitchers of all time.

Ford broke in with the Yankees in 1910 like a prototype Ron Guidry. Pitching for a second-rate Yankee team, he went 26-6 with eight shutouts and an ERA of 1.65. And believe it - batters in those days were every bit as good as they are now, though pitchers were allowed more tricks.

Ford's specialty was the 'emery ball' - a baseball doctored with a strip of emery that wove, dipped and nipped past batter after batter. If his emery ball lost its effectiveness, Ford also had a commanding fastball and knuckleball.

He won 22 games in 1911, then as suddenly as he had come onto the scene, he lost his effectiveness. In 1912 he set a club record of 21 losses that stands today. Some say that he became gunshy after beaming, and nearly killing, a rival batter.

Ford jumped to the rival Federal League and had one year of 20-6 with Buffalo. He retired soon after, and died in 1960.

But though he had only four seasons at the top, Ford still ranks in the top twenty all-time Yankee pitching greats. He ranks first in ERA over 800 innings with a 2.54 mark, and in the top ten in win percentage and strikeouts.

He held a Yankee season record of eight shutouts until 1978, when Ron Guidry pitched nine shutouts. Ford also ranks high in single season ERA (1.62, second), strikeouts, wins and complete games.

Only five times in Yankee history has a pitcher won 26 or more games in a season. Our boy Russell ranks up there with the giants.

The London district has produced many fine ballplayers. They include pitcher Oscar Judd, from Ingersoll;

Two Toronto boys who made good. Goodie Rosen, Dodgers' All-Star in 1945 after hitting .325 (top) and Dick Fowler, who pitched a no-hitter for Philadelphia. Fowler is the only Canadian to hurl a no-hit game.

Firestone® 721

The name says a lot about the strength of the steel cord. We wrap 7 steel filaments around 2 steel filaments, and then bind them all together with 1 more.  $7+2+1=721$ . That adds up to 10 steel filaments.

That's a very strong difference, but there are more.

We've developed a new rubber compound that holds on for dear life. The "721" steel cord has a large bonding surface for a better marriage between rubber and steel.

We've punished "721" tires for 5 million miles, at speeds higher than you'll ever drive. We tested them on wet roads and rough roads and through the tightest corners. This is the most proven tire we've ever introduced.

Your "721" tires will be installed at no extra charge, and backed by Firestone's Nationwide Warranty.

NO-CHARGE SERVICES

When you purchase a set of four 721 radials and pay for balancing all four wheels and a front end alignment, you'll receive a personalized "No-Charge" service card. We'll take care of your 721 radials, including alignment and balance, for as long as they're on your car. Ask us for full details.

Your No-Charge card is valid at any Firestone Store or participating dealer in Canada displaying the 721 No-Charge Service decal.

THE BEST STEEL BELTED RADIAL

first basemen Tommy Burgess (the Triple-A manager) and Frank Colman from London; outfielders Bunky Congalton and Jack Graney from Guelph and London.

Jack Graney played 1,402 games for Cleveland from 1908 to 1922. During that period he made baseball history in a small way.

He was the first batter to face rookie pitcher Babe Ruth, when Ruth was a cherubic pitching sensation for the Boston Red Sox in 1914.

He was the first major leaguer to wear an assigned number.

And he was the first ball player to move from the field to the media. Graney was the play-by-play man for the Indians for many years, and set a trend that continues to the present with, among others, Tony Kubek and our own Early Wynn.

There have been many other Canadians who made a mark in the majors. George Selkirk, from Huntsville, inherited both Babe Ruth's outfield position and his number 3. With "Twinkletoes" Selkirk in the outfield, the Yankees won five World Championships in the nine years he played.

Goodie Rosen, a Torontonian, hit .325 for the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1945 and made the All-Star team.

Jeff Heath of Fort William (now Thunder Bay) is the leading Canadian hitter of modern times. He is the only American League player to hit 20 or more doubles, triples and home runs in the same season, and was twice an All-Star with Cleveland. In 1941, he hit .340 with 123 RBIs.

Dick Fowler is the only Canadian pitcher to hurl a no-hit game. Phil Marchildon missed his best years during the Second World War, but was a strong pitcher for the A's for several years. Toronto's Ron Taylor sparkled as a World Series reliever for the Cardinals and the Mets in the 1960's. Taylor made seven World Series appearances during his career and allowed no hits and no runs in any. Taylor returned to medical school after his baseball career ended, and in February 1979 was appointed Blue Jay team physician.

No token Canadian, Dave McKay led the 1978 Jays in triples and played excellent second base.

Claude Raymond, a steady relief man for twelve years, finished his career with the Expos not too many years ago. There are many others.

Of the 32 Canadians presently in the minor leagues, 22 are pitchers. Six Canadians rank at the Class AAA level, which means that they will soon be debuting in the major leagues. Randy Weins (of Kamloops) is the only Triple A prospect owned by Toronto. He was 3-8 for the Syracuse Chiefs in 1978.

One outstanding Canadian in the minors is Sheldon Burnside, a top prospect for Detroit. The Etobicoke-born Burnside was 14-5 at Evansville in 1978, and will probably make the major league club in 1979.

The Blue Jays are looking hopefully at Windsor's Mike Lessard, who batted .304 for Medicine Hat (the lowest level of the Jays' farm system) in 1978.

Below is a list of Canadians presently in the minor leagues. Since this writing, several more have been signed (none by the Jays) but have not played professional baseball.

Terry Puhl (left) batted .289 for Houston in 1978 and made the All Star team. George 'Twinkletoes' Selkirk, from Huntsville, inherited both Babe Ruth's uniform number and his outfield position

Dr. Ron Taylor

In the normal scheme of things, the worlds of baseball and medicine meet only in times of crisis, pain and injury, or as a last resort for the ailing player. It's not an enjoyable experience for either side.

But baseball and medicine have become one and the same career for a unique man in a unique position.

Dr. Ron Taylor, former major league relief pitcher, former World Series pitching star and now a doctor, was appointed Blue Jays' team physician in early February.

"I've got the best of both worlds," Taylor said in an interview with the Toronto Sun shortly after his appointment. "I've always loved the game and always wanted to remain in it in some capacity, and now I'm able to combine both careers."

At age 41, Taylor has had more careers than most people would consider in a lifetime. He earned a degree in electrical engineering from the University of Toronto; played ten major league seasons, with great success; and after his playing career was over, studied medicine. Dr. Taylor graduated from medical school in 1977 and had been associated with Mount Sinai Hospital, Toronto.

A big part of his job with the team will be preventative medicine, catching small problems in a pitcher's delivery before they become major. His experience with the mechanics of pitching, and first-hand experience with back problems, will be very helpful. As well, Dr. Taylor spent part of spring training with the New York Mets and their team doctor, Dr. Jim Parkes. Dr. Parkes is a highly regarded specialist in sports medicine.

Ron Taylor the pitcher was signed out of the Leaside League in 1956 by the Cleveland Indians. In 1962 he was traded to St. Louis, for whom he made two World Series appearances in 1964 against the Yankees. He also pitched for Houston, San Diego and the Mets.

The 1969 season was the peak of his career. He was the busiest man in the bullpen for the Miracle Mets during their astonishing rise to the National League pennant and the World Championship. He had a win and a save in the National League championship series, and made two World Series appearances against the Orioles. Over his four World Series appearances, totalling seven innings, Taylor allowed no hits.

Dr. Taylor is believed to be the first former player to return to major league baseball as a team physician. Doc Medich, a pitcher with the Texas Rangers, is a graduate of medical school but is still playing.

FILL'ER UP.

If you think about it, there are certain similarities between a fine thirty-five millimeter camera and a high performance car.

Just as a finely tuned car requires premium fuel, so does a fine camera require a high performance film. And for most owners of fine thirty-five millimeter cameras, that means Kodak film.

Professionals and amateurs alike know that a camera is only as good as the film you fill it with. So they fill up with dependable, quality Kodak film.

Kodak has been producing high performance slide films for a long, long time. That's why to get the best mileage from your camera you should tank up with one of them.

You can choose from Kodachrome 25, Kodachrome 64, Kodak Ektachrome 64, 160 and 200. Try one soon. Whichever you choose you can't beat the sharpness, brilliant color and film latitude.

Once you fill 'er up with Kodak film, you'll find your slides are a gas.

League Batting

One man dominated the 1978 season in a manner not seen for several decades. Jim Rice, Boston's young slugger, led the league in eight of 15 categories, including hits, homers, RBI, total bases and slugging, as well as ranking third overall in average with a .315 mark. Rice was the first American League hitter in 41 years to total over 400 bases (Rice had 406), combined with 46 home runs for an awesome display of power. He was the league's MVP in 1978.

Rice was the only hitter to top the 40-homer mark. Second in home runs were California's Don Baylor and Larry Hise of Milwaukee, both with 34 round-trippers.

Rod Carew led the league once again with a .333 average, down considerably from 1977. Close behind Carew came Texas's Al Oliver with a .324 average, and Rice ranked third.

For sheer speed, no one could touch Detroit outfielder Ron LeFlore. The hard-hitting, fleet-footed LeFlore led the league in runs and stolen bases. The 68 stolen bases included a record-setting 29 consecutive successful stolen base attempts, a string which was ended by Toronto's Rick Cerone.

The league's top Designated Hitter was Rusty Staub of the Tigers. The 35-year-old slugger ranked second in the league in RBI, fourth in total bases, and fifth in hits while appearing in 162 games.

Doubles leadership went to Kansas City once again, with George Brett smacking 45 double baggers. Mike Hargrove of Texas drew 107 walks to lead the league in that category.

The Milwaukee Brewers performed well in several categories, with players like Larry Hise, Gorman Thomas and Robin Yount standing out. Other top players of 1978 were Cleveland's Andre Thornton, Ken Singleton and Doug DeCinces of Baltimore, and California's Don Baylor.

SEE C.C. ON THE SCOREBOARD AND SEE WHICH BLUE JAY STANDS THE BEST CHANCE OF SEEING THE WORLD ON C.C.

This season, one of our Blue Jays will slug his way right out of the country. The Blue Jay with the most RBIs will receive two tickets from Canadian Club to anywhere in the world that Air Canada flies.

The C.C. RBI champ will also have a donation made in his name to the charity of his choice compliments of Canadian Club.

Last season, John Mayberry batted in 70 RBIs winning himself the two free Air Canada tickets and the charitable donation.

And again this year you'll be able to follow the progress of the successful Blue Jay by watching our cunning C.C. character on the scoreboard.

Because he'll be back up on the board performing more zany RBIs. And after each C.C. RBI, you'll see an update of the Blue Jay RBI leader.

So see C.C. on the scoreboard and see who gets to see the world on C.C. And enjoy the game.

League Fielding

Though the Baltimore Orioles ranked first in the league for fielding excellence, as they have for the last five years, there was plenty of change in the rest of the league.

The New York Yankees, fourth in 1977, ranked second with a mark of .9819 in 163 games to the Orioles' .9823 in 161 games. Texas, who were second in 1977, slid to fourth-worst in the league and Toronto, second-last in 1977, rose up to fifth place in 1978. The Jays had only 128 errors in 161 games (down from 164 miscues in '77) for a .979 mark. Oakland was at the bottom with 178 errors in 162 games, a slightly better percentage than in 1977.

Top first baseman was Chris Chambliss of the Yankees, who performed almost flawlessly at first base in 155 games. At second base, Jose Cruz of the Seattle Mariners took the honours while top-fielding third baseman was Aurelio Rodriguez of the Detroit Tigers. Veteran shortstop Mark Belanger of Baltimore again topped all league shortstops with a .985 average at one of the toughest fielding positions in baseball.

In the outfield, Amos Otis of Kansas City reigned supreme with a .9949 mark, followed by Cleveland's Rick Manning at .9948 and Joe Rudi of the Angels at .991. Otis' teammate Al Cowens had a .990 mark in the outfield.

Ron LeFlore, who got high marks for his hitting and running, also led the league in putouts from the outfield with 440 for 1978. Right behind LeFlore came Toronto's flyhound centrefielder, Rick Bosetti, with 417.

Jim Sundberg of Texas repeated as the league's top-fielding catcher with a .997 mark (3 errors in 148 games). Next was Brian Downing of the California Angels with a .993 mark.

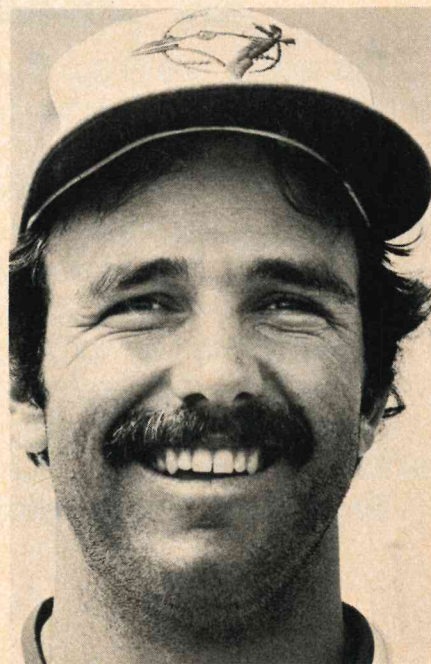

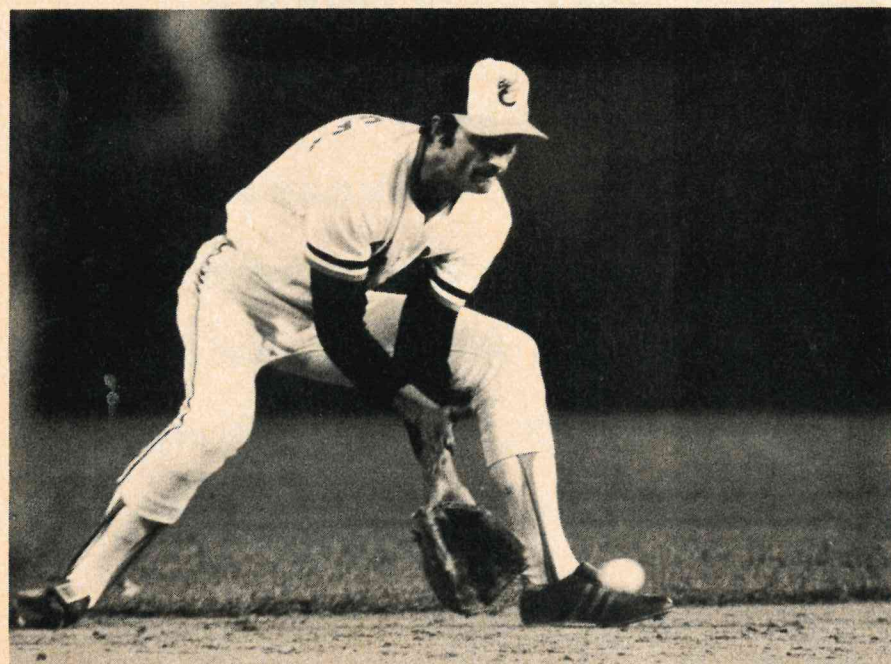

Top fielding pitcher of the season was 22-game winner Mike Caldwell of Milwaukee, who made no errors in his 37 games.

Only two triple plays occurred in 1978, and both involved the Toronto Blue Jays. In April, pitcher Jim Clancy started off the Jays' first-ever triple-killing; later in the year, the Baltimore Orioles triple-played the Jays.

Sylvania beat RCA and Zenith.
That's right. The Superset has done it again. In a recent independent survey, over a thousand people saw three unidentified 20" diagonal color TV pictures side by side. They were asked to pick the one with the best overall picture. And the people's choice was clear...

The Sylvania Superset over Zenith and RCA. We're not the biggest. But a lot of people think Sylvania has the best picture.

League Pitching

There's no question about who was number one on the mound in 1978. New York's Ron Guidry had a season that was nothing short of spectacular, setting both major league and club records in the process. Guidry went 25-3 for a win percentage of .893 (lowest for a 20-game winner in the history of baseball), and led the league in wins, win percentage, ERA, and shutouts while ranking second in strikeouts. He easily won the Cy Young award and was a strong contender for league MVP as well.

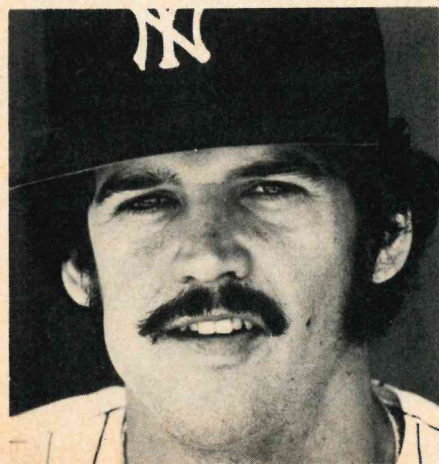

Guidry's teammate, Rich "The Goose" Gossage dominated the relief end of the game with a league-leading 27 saves and an ERA of 2.01 in 63 appearances.

Perennial star Jim Palmer of Baltimore, a three-time Cy Young award winner, won 21 games (the eighth time in his career he has won over 20) and ranked high in several other categories.

Comeback Player of the Year Mike Caldwell, of the Brewers, ranked second to Guidry in wins while leading the league in complete games and ranked third in innings pitched, shutouts, and ERA.

Oakland relievers worked hard in 1978, sweeping the top three spots in appearances. Kansas City pitchers Dennis Leonard, Paul Splittorff (a 20-game winner in 1977) and Larry Gura ranked high in several categories.

American League

Yankee reliever Rich "The Goose" Gossage won the American League 1979 Rolands Relief Award by a two-point margin over California's Dave LaRoche. Gossage earned the two-point lead in his last appearance of the season, the dramatic sudden-death playoff game between Boston and New York last October in which he got the save.

Gossage, the league's leading flamethrower, posted a 10-11 record to go with 27 saves for 63 points. LaRoche was 10-9 with 25 saves. (In the contest to determine the league's most effective bullpen specialist, two points are awarded for each win and save as a reliever, less one point for each relief loss.)

Completing the top five in the American League are Don Stanhouse of Baltimore (51 points), Mike Marshall of Minnesota (50 points) and Kansas City's Al Hrabosky (49 points). Stanhouse was 6-9 with 24 saves while Marshall finished at 10-12 with 21 saves and Hrabosky at 8-7 with 20 saves.

Gossage, LaRoche, Stanhouse, Marshall and Hrabosky are also the winners on their individual teams. Other team winners (each of whom will receive an engraved plaque) are Victor Cruz (Toronto), Bob Stanley (Boston), Lerrin LaGrow (Chicago), Jim Kern (Cleveland), John Hiller (Detroit), Bill Castro (Milwaukee), Elias Sosa (Oakland) and Enrique Romo (Seattle).

National League

In winning his second consecutive Rolands Relief Award, San Diego ace Rollie Fingers also tied Clay Carroll's National League record of 37 saves.

Fingers had a 6-14 won-loss record, but the addition of his remarkable 37 saves gave him a total of 73 points. He narrowly defeated Pittsburgh standout Kent Tekulve (71 points) for the honours. Tekulve, the heart of the Pittsburgh bullpen all season, had an 8-7 mark with 31 saves.

The Cincinnati Reds received the team award as the best bullpen in the major leagues this year. The Reds were led by Doug Bair (who ranked third in the league with 64 points), Dave Tomlin (25 points), Pedro Borbon (22 points) and Manny Sarmiento (21 points). As a team they finished with 38 wins, 15 losses and 46 saves for 153 points, 26 points better than their nearest rival.

In the major leagues, the Padres wound up Number Two with 127 points, followed by the Cubs (125 points), the Pirates (116 points) and the Yankees (98 points).

Powder Puffs

The All-Time, All-Opponent Team ...they're hot stuff everywhere but in Toronto!

Players have hot streaks and slumps all through the season, but over the course of time everything seems to average out.

However some of the Jays' opponents, pitchers and hitters, just can't seem to get it together against the Blue Jays.

Of course, the all-time Powder Puff award has to go to a pitcher who is really an outfielder. Larry Harlow of the Baltimore Orioles was called in to pitch midway through the famous 24 - 10 game of last summer, and left the game two-thirds of an inning later with the ignoble ERA of 67.50. We wish he was a pitcher all the time, though he was never any great shakes as a batter against the Jays, either.

Honourary Powder Puffs

Ron Guidry: He might have been a big deal in the rest of the league, but don't forget he took his third loss of the season from Mike Willis in September. And in 1977, it was Ron Guidry who threw a fat pitch to Hector Torres that Hector turned into the Blue Jays' first-ever grand slam homer. Guidry's ERA against the Blue Jays: 3.96 lifetime (38.2 innings pitched).

Reggie Jackson: Mr. Clutch likes Toronto, but the fans don't do anything for his bat. He batted only .159 against the Jays in 1978, with a .219 lifetime average, and he just seems to keep on striking out. Too bad, Reggie. We like you even more this way.

Though we can talk about Powder Puffs all we want, there's another side to this story. And that's all the slim-hitting, fat-pitching players who can only get it together against the Jays. Example: Cliff Johnson, whose home run swing sure does the job in Exhibition Stadium, though anywhere else in the league he has little luck.

But that's another story.

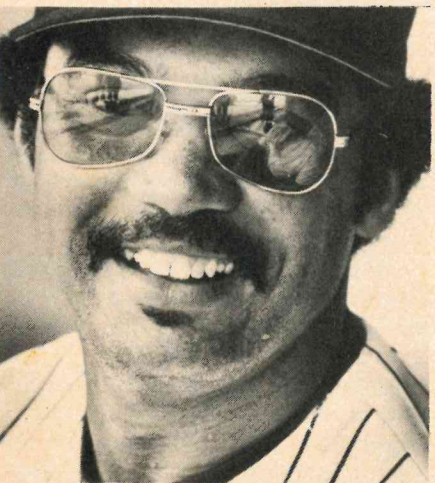

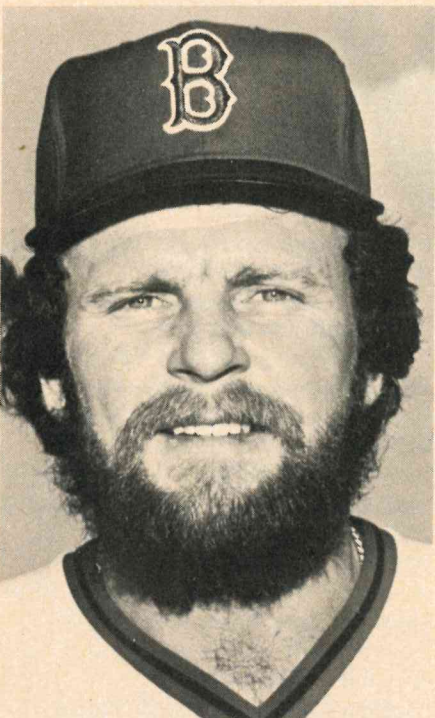

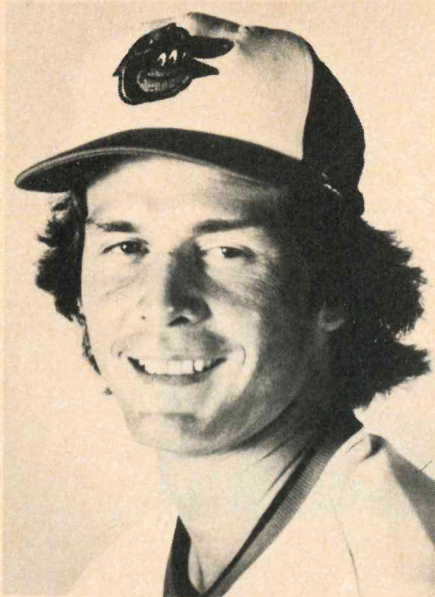

Don't you wish the Jays played these guys all the time? Clockwise from top: Larry Harlow, the Baltimore outfielder who came in to pitch in the 24-10 game last June; Angels' Joe Rudi, a high-priced free agent whose low average vs. Jays is surprising; Reggie Jackson, who loves Toronto but can't hit here; and Bill Lee of the Red Sox, 1977's top relief pitcher.

The Baseball Library

No sport has fostered as many legends as the sport of baseball.

And no other sport has inspired so many writers to devote their careers to enhancing and glorifying those legends, destroying the legends, or creating whole new legends through research.

The books listed below may not be the greatest baseball books ever written (we think some of them are) but we like them and you probably will too. We just don't have the space to run down every baseball book around - there are, literally, hundreds of them.

If we haven't listed the publisher, look in 'Books In Print' (available at all libraries) for the information you need. Library indexes are a good place to look for more books by an author you particularly like.

Be sure to flip to the end of the article, where we outline 'the Absolutely Necessary Baseball Reference Books'. They are important to your understanding and enjoyment of the game.

Enjoy your library. And don't worry that we didn't mention other classics such as The Natural, Five Seasons, and the hundreds of other baseball books cherished by fans. New readers will find their way there eventually.

Here it is: The Baseball Nut's Library.

The Executive's Choice

The son of a baseball family and a career baseball man himself, Peter Bavasi has a challenging job. He's the man responsible for operating and marketing the Toronto Blue Jays, third-year expansion team and scrappy inhabitants of the American League East. You might think a baseball executive would have different tastes than a fan, but it's not so!

Baseball's Back In Town. Lou Cauz's history of baseball in Toronto, from the nineteenth-century sandlot teams up to the introduction of major league baseball in 1976. It's as much the story of the city of Toronto as of baseball, and is full of priceless photographs. An interesting read and beautifully designed. Available at Simpson's Dugout. (Controlled Media, 1977).

Hit the Sign and Win a Suit From Harry Finklestein. A new book from one of the most prolific modern baseball writers, Burt Sugar. It's a history of baseball marketing and promotions (thus the name). The first chapter is devoted to the phenomenal marketing success of the Toronto Blue Jays.

Judge Landis and 25 Years of Baseball. Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis was appointed the first Commissioner of Baseball in the wake of the 1919 Black Sox scandal. It was a raucous era, but under Landis' iron hand baseball formed the self-policing network it has maintained ever since, making it the most irreproachable of sports. By Taylor Spink (T.Y. Crowell and Co. Inc., New York, 1947).

Bavasi also mentioned books on the technical aspects of baseball, highly recommended to those who play or coach amateur baseball.

Walter Alston's Handbook of Baseball is the complete how-to book of baseball technique. Directions on everything from training players, to teaching the different positions, to some strategy.

Al Campanis' The Dodger Way to Play Baseball was written in 1955 and has been translated into a dozen languages, which leads us to speculate that they play The Dodger Way in Somalia. The book gathers together the proven techniques and strategies handed down within one of baseball's greatest dynasties - the Dodgers.

Danny Finkleman

Danny Finkleman's Saturday morning show on CBC radio has gathered faithful listeners from across Canada and as far away as Pennsylvania. His unique approach to issues raised on the show extends to his taste in baseball reading material as well. Finkleman rejects many of the classics, that only polish the glow of the legends, in favour of those, less widely known, which present a new slant or an honest approach to the sport and the men who play it.

He would 'recommend' only one book to program readers (A False Spring), but mentioned a couple of others that made enjoyable reading.

A False Spring is the autobiography of Pat Jordan, who signed himself into the minors as a bonus baby in the 1950's. Jordan never made it to the major leagues; his book is a thoughtful appraisal of the minor league subculture. There is no bitterness in Jordan when he discusses the human aspects of the sport, the baseball life, or his failure to break into the majors. This isn't a book about heroes.

Sportsworld by Robert Lipsyte is, in Finkleman's opinion, "the best book on sports ever written". Though it does not deal exclusively with baseball (as a columnist, Lipsyte covered several other sports and their legends) Sportsworld strips away the glow of PR from the business of baseball and the personalities. Though at one point Lipsyte refers to hockey players as 'poor rural Canadians who have no other way to make a living', his book is a real eye-opener. Suggest you read something by Roger Kahn immediately afterwards to keep everything in perspective. (Quadrangle/New York Times Book Co., 1975)

The Editor's Choice

It's a common complaint that too many baseball writers idealize the sport and the players. It's not the kind of sport that anyone can write about objectively, though there are a few fresh approaches around that are worth finding.

But sometimes it's a pleasure to immerse yourself in someone's pleasant, rose-coloured memories. If that's what interests you, Baseball As I Have Known It is a pleasure to read. Author Fred Lieb has covered baseball since the early years of this century, and knew most of the legendary players personally. Lieb ruffles no feathers and disturbs no myths; his book is a fascinating trip down memory lane, respectful to the memories of the men he knew and the job they did. It is the memoirs of a man who lived for, and loved the game of baseball. (Coward, McCann & Geoghegan, New York, 1977).

Ball Four is the moral opposite to Lieb's book, and we recommend that you pick it up as soon as you finish with Lieb. Jim Bouton, the author, was a 20-game winner for the Yankees in the 1960's and a journeyman after the book was published. Bouton is irreverent and bluntly realistic, certainly mincing no words. The best antidote available for nostalgia. (World, New York, 1970)

The Great American Novel will completely destroy your faith in heroes, which is exactly what author Philip Roth wants to do. Don't give this one to your kid, because Roth pulls no punches. Occasionally hilarious, and well written.

Nice Guys Finish Last. Leo Durocher swears he never actually said that, but tells you the story

Chappie and Me

This is a novel about baseball, and the way it was for black players in the charged summer of 1939 - six years and a long war before the colour barrier in baseball was at last lifted, and America began to recognize that the likes of Jackie Robinson, Henry Aaron, Willie Mays and Rod Carew had been out there all along.

Chappie and Me is the story of John Craig, a young white first baseman who masqueraded behind lampblack and black shoe polish with Chappie's Coloured All Stars. He came to know the world that blacks, and black barnstormers, had to live with: Eating 'out back.' Rednecks. The back of the bus. The insults and threats. And the fact that the Coloured All Stars, because they were coloured, had to be funny but never, never 'uppity' - despite the fact that they were light years better than any local team they played.

The Boys of Summer. Roger Kahn's then-and-now portrait of the stars of one of baseball's greatest teams, the Brooklyn Dodgers of the 1940's and 1950's. Starting with his own memories of this team, Kahn flashes back and forth to the present-day condition of players like Roy Campanella, Duke Snider, and more. Interesting. Also by Kahn, A Season In The Sun, his Bicentennial tribute to the American Game. (Harper & Row, New York).

The Absolutely Most Challenging Baseball Quiz Book, Ever. David Nemec's book will have even the best-armed trivialists beating their collective heads against the wall. A great book if you want to be an ace baseball trivialist, or just bug the guy at the corner bar who thinks he knows it all. (Macmillan/Collier Books, New York; Macmillan Canada, 1977)

Reference Books

Just how serious are you about this game? Do you hate giving your season tickets to clients? Do the kids distract you when you go? Have you ever sat through a three-hour rain delay?

were coloured, had to be funny but never, never 'uppity' - despite the fact that they were light years better than any local team they played.

Chappie and Me is a story of pain and injustice, but it is also a tale of courage, humour and strength. It's a story of many different kinds of love. It's a story about a culture and a society that is long since gone. It is a story about dignity and perseverance, and most of all it is a story about learning to live.

The author, John Craig, actually did play a dozen or so games with a black barnstorming team. The Peterborough native, who now lives in Toronto, used those experiences as a base for this very entertaining book, which we highly recommend.

It will be available in May from Dodd, Mead & Co. Don't miss it.

The Official Baseball Guide.

Another Sporting News publication. The Guide gives you all the details on the previous year including leading batters and pitchers, awards, club information, and World Series. Also a run-down of the club's performance, baseball news, records, and minor leagues.

The Baseball Dope Book (yet another Sporting News book) is the manual that most fans swear by. We don't know what it's got that the preceding two books lack, but it is smaller and easier to bring to the ballpark.

The Book of Baseball Records.

Published by The Sporting News. The ultimate light reading for the baseball fan, this book contains hundreds of records from both leagues, some of them so obscure that you won't believe it. It is really baseball's Book of Standards.

The Official Baseball Rules are published by The Sporting News, and cost 75¢. If you know your rules, you can heckle the umpires much more effectively. They appreciate a well-informed heckler, though they can out-quote you easily.

All Sporting News publications are available from: The Sporting News, 1212 North Lindbergh Blvd., St. Louis Mo. 63166. Prices vary, so check The Sporting News (available at Lichtman's) for book and shipping prices.

Reference Books

The Baseball Encyclopedia contains lifetime records for every player who ever made a major league appearance. Also records of the old 19th Century Leagues. This big, thick, hard-cover book will run you around $40.00 (Macmillan/Collier Canada).

Society for American Baseball Research. If you are interested in any aspect of baseball history, you should join the Society. They like their members to contribute original research, so get out the box scores and dig in. Some fascinating stuff comes out of this organization, which is less than ten years old. The previously published volumes are available for about $4.00 apiece, and a membership costs $15.00. SABR: Contact through Hall of Fame, Cooperstown, New York.

Baseball Blue Book. Next time you feel called upon to communicate directly with players, scouts, or clubs, cough up your $60.00 and subscribe to Baseball Blue Book Inc. All sorts of obscure information, addresses of players, scouts and clubs, minor league players' trades, status and affiliations, and much more. Can you live without it? Your $60.00 buys you the Major League Year and Notebook, the Minor League Digest, and the Baseball Blue Book - Your Baseball Bible. (Baseball Blue Book Inc., P.O. Box 40847, St. Petersburg, Florida 33743).

For the Novice

To help you understand what all those people are doing leaping around on the field, we suggest you get a good grounding in the basics, and also read up on baseball history.

A Thinking Man's Guide To Baseball by Leonard Koppett (E.P. Dutton and Co., New York, 1967). Factual and entertaining, Koppett explains everything from pitching to fielding to how to interpret statistics. He's easy to read, amusing, and probably your best introduction to the intricacies of the game.

Baseball: the Early Years. We think every fan should know a little about the history of the game. It adds dimension to your understanding and enjoyment. One of the best books you can get is Baseball: The Early Years, by Harold Seymour (Oxford University Press, New York, 1960). He starts you off in the right direction by debunking the myth that Abner Doubleday was hit by a shaft of light one day in 1839 and invented the game, rules and all.

Heckling

The chance to heckle is one of the privileges that comes with your ticket purchase, just like the privilege of second-guessing the manager, arguing with your neighbour over the relative merits of Koufax and Guidry, or waving your pennant in peaceful appreciation of the game.

Heckling is a big part of the game, and always has been. It can't be categorized as part of 'cheering', because it is more than noise - it is an art form.

Players and umpires are used to it and expect it, and sometimes even enjoy a particularly good heckle. Nestor Chylak, who up until 1978 was the American League's senior umpire, likes to listen to the fans - when they know what they're talking about. Managers and players like to hear the reaction from the crowd.

Heckling is a demanding art and requires a good deal of preparation. The only hard-and-fast rule is this: If you can't say anything funny and original, say nothing at all. If the best you can do is comment on somebody's haircut, restrain yourself.

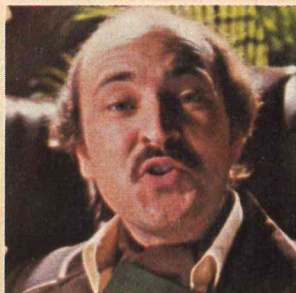

Any ballpark in the league may sometimes seem like a training ground for stand-up comics. Lines fly back and forth; sometimes the hecklers are themselves heckled, and the best byplay may have nothing to do with what's happening on the field.

These are the requirements for a good heckler. No others need apply.

- 1) A well-developed sense of humour.
- 2) Know your baseball inside out. Otherwise, you'll get blown away on your first heckle.
- 3) Be prepared to laugh at yourself when somebody nails you!
- 4) Strong lungs and throat, especially for double-headers.
- 5) Be major league - offer congratulations to your victims if they come across in spite of you!

If you really want to get your heckling down pat, buy a bleacher ticket to any game in Chicago. Their hecklers are sharp and fast, and so well organized that they even charter buses to go out and pretend that they're Henny Youngman.

What gives GUSTO frozen pizza such gusto?

Is it the crust with the hand-rolled edge? (Tastes so good with every wedge!) Is it the cheese that makes it taste better? With mozzarella, parmesan and cheddar. It could be the spice that's naturally nice...or maybe the fresh green pepper. Oh, what gives Gusto pizza such gusto?

There's pepperoni sliced on top. Great big slices. Oh! But stop! There's the tangy sauce that's blended with care. Rich and red and made with flair. But what gives Gusto pizza such gusto?

Superstition

"Me? Superstitious?" scoffed Rick Cerone. "Never!"

He thought for a minute. "Well, there was one thing . . ."

It turned out that Rick was indeed a little superstitious, like most players. And like most players, he didn't really like to talk about it.

In his last year of college, Rick had to play on a very cold day. He layered up - long johns, undershirt, and wool uniform.

On that cold day, he got four hits,

Willie Upshaw discovers that umpires and good luck never go hand-in-hand (above). Rico Carty (right) has bounced back from misfortune many times, but keeps the secret to himself.

including two home runs.

"I wore the same clothes for the rest of the year - all of them. It was 95 degrees in June, and I was wearing long johns. My socks were full of holes. Everything was full of holes.

"But I was the Number One draft choice that year."

Mind you, Rick washed his uniform. In his book Nice Guys Finish Last, Leo Durocher tells of an extended win streak during which his players refused to wash their uniforms (or, occasionally, themselves) for fear they would break their streak. The uniforms could have gone out and played by themselves.

Let's forget about rabbit's feet, black cats and Friday the 13th. That's kid stuff.

The kind of superstition practiced by baseball players is applied superstition - the kind that courts Lady Luck, that most fickle of companions.

Luck is an important part of any game, maybe the most important factor after skill. A man can be the greatest player in the world, but if he isn't a little bit lucky too, he isn't going to get that big play, that clutch hit. He wants to keep that batting streak going, wants to keep winning games. And he wants to end slumps and start winning when things aren't going too well.

Jim Clancy, for example, refuses to give interviews when he's winning. Why? "Because talking about it might break it."

Rico Carty has a bottle of 'magic

is!

bring it on when you need it.

"If you did certain things before or during a game, and had a good game, then the next day you'll try to repeat exactly what you did the day before. If you had a swim, you'll go out to the pool - even if it's raining. You'll eat the same meal, arrive at the park at the same time, do the same things in the on-deck circle and even walk to and from the plate the same way. You just repeat everything."

Cerone continued, "And if things aren't going too well, you try and change everything around."

Students of magic will note that repetitive rituals are the basis of all superstitious rites. One person even referred to this habit of following a set pattern as "a form of meditation . . . a way of concentrating on your inner strength. It's baseball yoga!"

When Dennis Eckersley (then with Cleveland) hurled his no-hitter in 1977, it was reported that between innings he was careful to do exactly what he had done the inning before; put on his jacket, take a sip of water, and refuse to speak to anyone. He repeated this after every inning, and got his no-hitter.

Power symbols are another interesting quirk. For example, a player in a slump might use another player's bat; it's "got more hits in it". And another name on the bat might fool Luck.

Mascots and such are lucky for some teams, but the Toronto players had no examples.

But Joe Bodolai, former assistant PR director for the Blue Jays and former star second baseman for his Ohio Little League team, recalls a mascot.

It was a rubber tree plant that one of the moms had brought along on a whim (a certain song was popular that year). It sat on the bench all year, and the team won all year.

Whatever these "superstitions" mean, it is a fact that they are extremely personal. Every player interprets things his own way, and has his own habits and rituals.

Is it just the belief that something is lucky that makes it lucky? Is it coincidence?

Think about that the next time you see Rico Carty's bat gleaming before he pounds one over the fence. Or the next time you see Mark Fidrych talking to the mound and the ball. Or Al Hrabosky transforming himself into a werewolf on the mound. Maybe there's something in it!

oil' that he rubs on himself and his bats before every game. No one else is allowed to touch it. No one even knows for sure what it is. But whatever it is, it works. Rico is closing in on 40 and can out-hit most players in the league.

Willie Horton's lucky talisman is his batting helmet. He still uses the same one he was issued in his rookie year, just repainting it. Rumour has it that Willie sleeps with his bats, too, but take this with a grain of salt.

And all self-respecting ballplayers carefully avoid stepping on the third base line while going on and off the field.

But the most common superstition of all is the belief (or hope) that a certain pattern of activities will extend your luck, or

How to Figure

Individual Batting - Divide the total number of times a player has been at bat into the total number of hits he has made. Example: Player White has 361 official times at bat and has been credited with 92 hits. Dividing 92 by 361 results in a batting average of .255.

To win a batting championship in the major leagues, a player must have a total of 502 appearances at the plate (at bats, sacrifice flies, sacrifice hits, walks and hit-by-pitcher). The number 502 was set as the qualifying standard because it is the product of games scheduled (162) multiplied by 3.1 (the average number of times a player goes to bat during a game).

Slugging Average - Divide the total number of times a player has been at bat into the total number of bases he has accumulated. Example: Player Green has 534 official times at bat and is credited with a total of 382 bases (home run four, triple three, double two, single one). Dividing 534 into 382 gives a slugging percentage of .715.

Earned Run Average - The number of earned runs a pitcher has allowed is multiplied by nine, the number of innings in a game. The product is then divided by the number of innings he has pitched. Example: Pitcher Black has allowed 63 earned runs in 174 innings. The formula is 63 times 9, divided by 174. The result is an earned run average of 3.26

A pitcher must hurl 162 innings in a season to qualify for the earned run average championship. The number was arbitrarily selected to represent one inning pitched for each game scheduled.

Fielding Average - The total number of putouts, assists and errors on a player's record are added. Also add the number of putouts and assists he has. Then, divide the first sum (putouts, assists, errors) into the second sum (putouts, assists). Example: Player Brown has 167 putouts, 67 assists and three errors. The formula is 167 plus 67 plus 3, divided into 167 plus 67. That results in a fielding average of .987. A fielding champion must appear in 108 games at his position, except a catcher, who must appear in 81 games.

Won-lost percentage is reached by dividing the number of victories by the total of games played (both won and lost).

The number of games behind the leader in the standings is determined by comparing the leading team's record with the trailing team's figures on a minus-plus basis - 12 victories and 4 losses, against 7 victories and 8 losses is a difference of 5 victories and 4 losses . . . The total of nine is then divided by two - indicating a difference of 4 1/2 games.

To determine the "magic number" in a pennant race, compute the number of games yet to be played, add one, then subtract the number of games ahead in the loss column of the standings, from the closest opponent.

Field Staff

Roy Hartsfield (above) works out with the players and shows the fine form that won him a berth with the old Boston Braves in the 1950's. Bob Miller, right, the Jays' pitching coach, tries to describe the shape of things to come to a reporter at spring training camp.

Roy Hartsfield

Team skipper Roy Hartsfield had every reason to be a happy man at the close of the 1978 season. His contract was extended through the '79 season, and best of all, he had seen his fledgling Blue Jays make real progress in their second year of existence. That may have been the greatest satisfaction, as it vindicated Hartsfield's belief in the team and Toronto fans.

Patient and methodical, Hartsfield is the ideal man for a job as challenging as that of making an expansion team into a major league reality. He has also earned the respect of rival managers - his Blue Jays are no pushovers!

This season will be Hartsfield's 37th in baseball. As a player he broke in as a 17-year-old with Atlanta of the Southern Association. He was a brilliant minor league infielder and a hard-hitter. He played three seasons with the Boston Braves (266 hits in 265 games) before returning to the minors in 1952. He began his managing career with Des Moines in 1958. Hartsfield returned to the majors in 1969 as a coach with the Los Angeles Dodgers. He was with the Atlanta Braves briefly in 1973 before returning as a minor league manager with Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League.

His clubs in Hawaii won two pennants and were second and third the other two years.

Age: 53 (Oct. 25, 1925)

Ht: 5'-9" Wt: 170 lbs.

Birthplace: Chattahoochee, Ga.

Bobby Doerr

During his 14 years with the Boston Red Sox, Doerr was one of the finest second basemen in the league. He finished his long career with a .288 lifetime average, three times hitting over .300, and a total of 1,247 RBI (one of the highest in the league). A fine fielder as well as a hitter, Doerr set several fielding records.

As a teammate of Ted Williams, Doerr had an opportunity to study first-hand the mechanics of one of the modern era's greatest hitters. Now he applies his years of experience to teaching the elusive art of hitting, and his presence on the team is almost invariably reflected by an increase in the team batting average and a related boost in confidence for the entire club.

Doerr joins the team for spring training, and visits from time to time during the season. When not in his Blue Jays uniform, he operates a fishing camp in Oregon.

Bob Miller

A good pitcher is worth his weight in gold, but he can only be a good pitcher with good coaching.

The man responsible for the Jays' pitching staff is Bob Miller, a veteran of ten major league clubs in both leagues during his career.

His work with veteran and rookie pitchers has been outstanding, developing young talents like Jim Clancy and Jerry Garvin. He has had encouraging success with veterans on the staff such as Jesse Jefferson.

Without any minor league experience Miller pitched in five games for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1958. After a stint in the minors with Rochester and Houston he rejoined the Cards in '59. He was the first man drafted by the New York Mets when the National League expanded in 1962 and playing for one of the worst teams in baseball (40-120), Miller had a 1-12 won-lost mark. He went to the Los Angeles Dodgers the following year and compiled a 10-8 mark and a fine 2.89 ERA.

He spent five seasons with the Dodgers, appearing in two World Series. He led the NL in appearances with 74 in 1964. He was with Minnesota, Cleveland, both Chicago clubs, San Diego, Pittsburgh, Detroit and concluded his career with the Mets. His best seasons were 1971 when he had a 1.64 ERA in 56 games while playing for three teams and a 2.67 ERA for the Pirates in 1972. He pitched in the '71 World Series for the Pirates. Miller coached for Hartsfield in Hawaii in 1975 and was manager-of-the-year in 1976 when Amarillo won the Texas League pennant and playoffs.

Harry Warner (above left), the Jays' third base coach, addresses an unseen target from the safety of the coach's box. Warner managed the club through sixteen games early in 1978, and had a 5-11 record in that capacity. Jackie Moore (right) works the first base coach's box. Moore played for a short time with the Toronto Leafs in 1967 before the franchise was dissolved.

Jackie Moore

Despite his apparent youth, first base coach Jackie Moore brings years of experience to the job.

He was a coach with the Milwaukee Brewers from 1970 through 1972, and with Texas from 1973 to 1976, when the Jays lured him to Toronto.

Moore played in the minors for eleven years, with one 21-game major league stint at Detroit in 1965.

In 1967, Moore played with the Toronto Maple Leafs in their last year of existence. He managed the team for their last four games and thus holds the distinction of being the Leafs' last manager and a coach on the city's first major league team.

Age: 40 (Feb. 19, 1939)

Ht: 6'-0" Wt: 180 lbs.

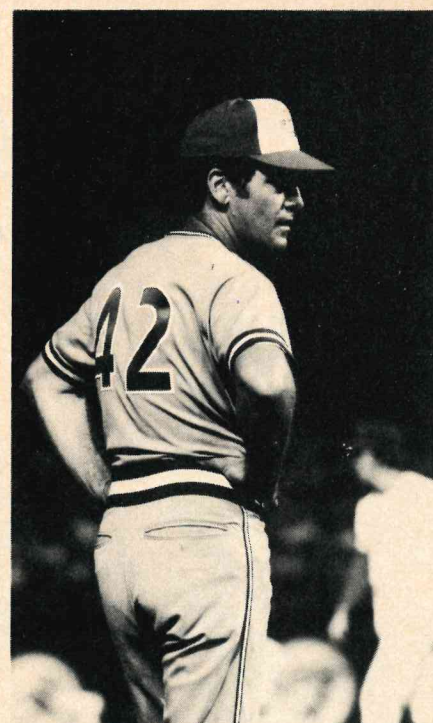

Birthplace: Jay, Fla.

Don Leppert

Leppert joined the Jays for their first season, after nine years as a coach for the Pittsburgh Pirates. He is now on his third term as the Jays' bullpen coach.

Leppert stresses the basics in his work with catchers, a fact emphasized by the defensive reputation enjoyed by the Jays' receivers around the league. He also likes to pitch batting practice for the team.

During his playing career,

Leppert was with Pittsburgh and the old Washington Senators, whom he represented at the 1963 All-Star Game. He made something of a splash in his first major league at bat by hitting a home run.

Age: 47 (Oct. 9, 1931)

Ht: 6'-2" Wt: 215 lbs.

Birthplace: Indianapolis, Ind.

Harry Warner

Third-base coach Harry Warner had a dream come true in 1978.

After thirty years in the minor leagues as a player, player-manager and manager, and two seasons coaching with the Blue Jays, Warner got a chance to manage the major league team for sixteen games while Roy Hartsfield was in Atlanta with his wife, Alice (who was undergoing surgery). Against New York, Boston and Texas, Warner had a 5-11 record.

Warner worked with the Washington-Minnesota organization for 17 years before joining the Blue Jays in 1977. He won four pennants in the minors, and managed many of the Twins' young stars - Rod Carew, Bert Blyleven, Graig Nettles and Butch Wynegar.

As well as coaching at third, Warner works with the team's outfielders.

Jim Clancy

You have to hand it to Jim Clancy. Not too many young men could face the kind of pressure that he's lived with for two years, and come out stronger. Clancy has not only survived; he's flourished.

He had never pitched higher than Double-A ball when the Jays called him up in July, 1977. His major league debut was not promising, as he pitched only two innings against Texas and gave up five runs on five hits.

But in the half-season following his debut, Clancy made exceptional progress and was involved in several of the team's biggest games. He was the winning pitcher in the Jays' 19-3 rout of the Yankees in September, 1977 and he won the controversial forfeit game against Baltimore five days later to finish up his rookie season with a deceptive 4-9 record and an ERA of 5.03.

It took him a few times around to hit his stride in 1978. After two disappointing starts, Jim beat the White Sox 6-2 in front of 44,000 Jacket Day fans and started off the Jays' first-ever triple play. A small slump followed, then he snapped back into form, besting the Yankees on their home turf in front of the largest crowd ever assembled to watch the Jays play. He won his next start with his overpowering fastball, striking out eight Red Sox batters in Fenway Park before a national TV audience.

Clancy was named co-winner (with Tommy Underwood) of the Labatt's Pitcher of the Year award. His ten victories and 4.09 ERA were best on the staff, and were also the best records of his professional career.

Rico Carty

Rico has done a lot for the Jays, much of it before he even put on a Blue Jay uniform!

When Rico was signed as a free agent after the 1978 season, it marked the third time that the Blue Jays had acquired the veteran slugger. Through various trades, Rico was responsible for bringing catcher Rick Cerone and minor league pitcher Phil Huffman to the Jays.

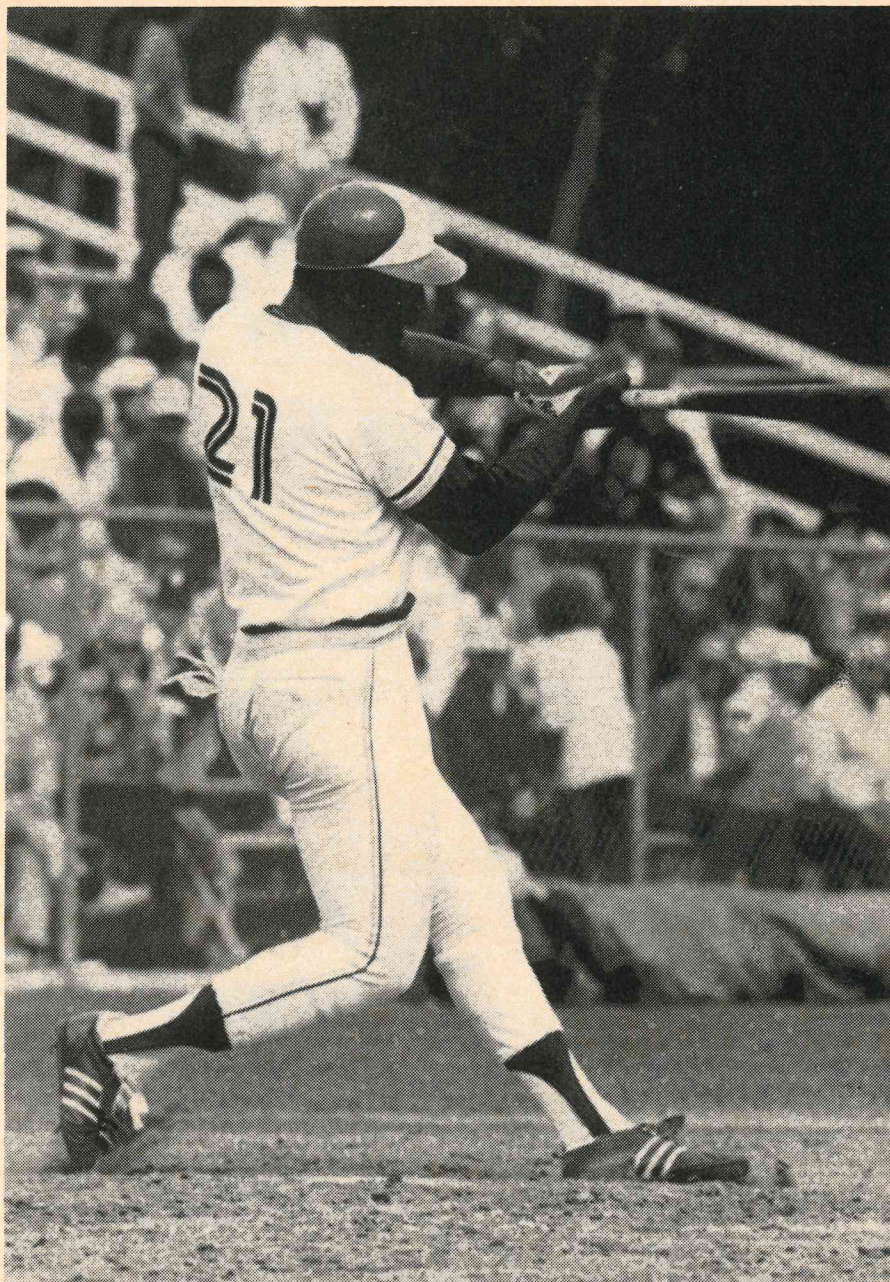

He joined the team to play in spring training 1978, arriving from Cleveland in return for pitcher Dennis DeBarr. For the first time, the team actually had an established major league star on the roster.

He was a dependable and powerful hitter and along with John Mayberry, gave the middle of the batting order the clout it had been missing in 1977. Rico was the first batter to surpass the first-year records in homers and RBI, and he had topped them by July.

Though the team got off to a rocky start in 1978, Rico had the best April of his career, a start which even surprised him. He batted .417 in May, then was sidelined with a hamstring injury. Among his other accomplishments - and they are far too numerous to mention here - he hit his second career grand slam for the Jays. Add up the home runs, the game-winning RBI, the three and four-hit games, and his value becomes even more apparent. Rico batted over .300 against seven American League clubs, including .375 against the Yankees and .341 against Baltimore. Baltimore ace Jim Palmer considers Rico one of the toughest batters in the league, and not many batters scare Palmer!

Rico made another contribution to the team which was less obvious than the many pitches flying over fences. His spirit and joviality gave the young team heart. His humour kept the team loose and his experience and perspective helped make the losses learning experiences instead of bitter ones.

He was traded to Oakland mid-way through the season in return for minor league pitcher Phil Huffman and veteran DH Willie Horton. After the season, the Jays regained Rico's services and when he declared his free agency, entered into the bidding. He was signed to a contract which retains his services as a scout after he retires from play.

After a 17-1 career as a boxer, the young Rico Carty started playing pro ball in 1960. In 1963 he made a brief appearance with the old Maple Leafs. Rico had a stunning rookie debut with the Milwaukee Braves in 1964, batting .330 with 22 home runs and 88 RBI. He missed the entire 1968 season with tuberculosis, but recovered and in 1970 led both major leagues with a .366 average! He missed all of 1971 with severe leg injuries, and batted only .277 (only?) for Atlanta the following year. The year of 1973 saw him hop from Texas to Oakland to the Chicago Cubs, who finally released him. Rico went to Mexico to play and it was there that Cleveland purchased his services, while he was batting .354 for the Cordoba club. Rico hit over .300 for the Tribe over the next two seasons, and he was one of the most popular players the team had ever had. Toronto drafted him in the 1976 expansion draft but traded him back to the Indians. In March 1978, Rico arrived in Dunedin and put on his Blue Jay uniform for the first time.

Al Woods

Woods tied two major league records in his first major league at bat. Called into the Opening Day 1977 game as a pinch-hitter, the young outfielder blasted a home run into the stands. Few players have hit a home run in their first major league at bat, and fewer still have hit a homer while acting as a pinch-hitter in their first major league at bat.

Woods was starting left fielder for the Jays in 1977, appearing in 122 games. However, through the year it became obvious that he needed more work in the field and at the plate than the Jays could give him.

He started the 1978 season at the major league level, but was sent to the Triple-A Syracuse Chiefs in late April in order to play every day. The results were immediately noticeable. Woods was soon hitting over .300 for the last-place International League team, and he had one memorable game soon after his arrival in which he hit three home runs (including one grand slam) and had two singles for six RBI against Toledo. When the Jays recalled him in July, he was hitting .313 with 11 homers and 49 RBI - one of the best totals on the team.

In his first game back with the Jays, Woods hit a game-winning RBI double. He remained with the team for the rest of the season, batting .241.

John Mayberry

In a surprise deal just prior to the opening of the 1978 season, the Jays acquired the services of one of the league's renowned power hitters: John Mayberry of the Kansas City Royals.

Before joining the Jays, Mayberry had been considered a "leading opponent" after a 1977 game in Toronto in which he hit three home runs against the Jays. Offensively he ranks as one of the decade's top first basemen, averaging 23 homers and 89 RBI per year. He still holds most of the Royals' offensive records.

Mayberry had a 22 homer, 70 RBI year and batted .250. It marked the sixth time in seven years that he hit 20 or more home runs. His final home run of the season, Number 22 off Ed

Rodriguez of New York, was also his 1,000th career hit.

Many of his hits, RBI and homers were the key to Blue Jay wins, especially when combined with the punch carried by his comrade Rico Carty. There were times when it seemed that Mayberry could carry the game all by himself, such as one game against the White Sox in which his two double-RBI innings scored all the Blue Jay runs. In the 24-10 game against Baltimore, Mayberry alone hit two homers and a double to account for seven runs.

Mayberry has a Gold Glove to his credit, and patrols first base with the same authority he wields at the plate. The dependable fielder appeared in 154 games for the Jays, giving the first base position a stability it had lacked in 1977.

Rick Cerone

There was one man on the Blue Jays who wasn't sorry to see the last of Alan Ashby, though he liked him very much. That man was Rick Cerone, and the Alan Ashby trade with Houston meant that he was now the number one catcher for the Jays. It also meant that for the first time in his professional career, he would not be backing up Ashby.

Though Cerone was 1977 Opening Day catcher, it was not until 1978 that he had the opportunity to play regularly at the major league level. He started out with a hot streak at the plate that kept him behind it until May, and later split catching duties evenly with senior Al Ashby. His best month was August, when he batted .302.

It was defensively that Cerone really established himself on the roster. His handling of pitchers improved noticeably as the season progressed, and he developed that 'take charge' attitude that all good catchers must have. His arm was no problem, as he quickly proved to would-be base thieves. Among the notables that Rick has caught are Mitchell Page and Ron LeFlore, ending their record-setting consecutive stolen base strings.

Cerone was Cleveland's number one draft choice after an outstanding collegiate baseball career at Seton Hall (where he still owns almost every offensive record). He broke in immediately at the Triple-A level and after only 46 games in the minors, was called up to the major league team . . . to back up Al Ashby. He was acquired by the Blue Jays in return for draftee Rico Carty in the 1976 Expansion Draft.

Bob Bailor

Bob Bailor started out as Number One with the Jays in the 1976 expansion draft, and he's still number one.

To the casual observer, Bailor's sophomore year with the Jays seemed less successful than his rookie 1977 season, when he batted .310 (the highest mark ever for a player on a first-year expansion team). Last season his average dropped to a less phenomenal .264, but he made up for it in ways that simply proved his overall ability.

Finally landing a fairly steady right field job (128 games in the outfield, 28 at second base, and four at shortstop), Bailor proved to be very solid defensively. He also managed to shake the 'injury-prone' label with which he had been tagged after 1977. Bailor appeared in a total of 154 games and without compromising his all-out style of play, preserved his health for the good of the team as a whole.

He had been the leadoff man in 1977, but in 1978 gave that position in the order to flyhound Rick Bosetti and concentrated his considerable talents on advancing the runners. Bailor proved that he could move men along; he had surpassed his entire 1977 RBI total by mid-June of last season.

And though he batted some forty points less than in 1977, he led the club in runs, hits and doubles and ranked second in sacrifice hits and triples. That's not really a disappointing year.

Bailor enjoyed two hit streaks in July and August, the longest of twelve games (McKay's 16-game streak led the club). He had started off the season with a hot streak, batting .357 for the month of April, but slumped badly in May. As the days got hotter so did Bailor, peaking in mid-August with two four-hit performances against Kansas City. On August 13, Bailor outran U.L. Washington's throw to score the winning run from second base in a ten inning game. He won the Gillette Special Award on 'This Week in Baseball' after that performance, the first Blue Jay ever to be so honoured.

Last but not least, Bailor was the toughest man in the league to strike out in 1978. He whiffed in only 21 of 621 at bats, just shy of the major league record set by Nellie Fox twenty years ago.

Number one is still number one. Teammate Roy Howell scooped the Labatt's MVP award, but Bailor was named Player of the Year for the second time by the BBWAA.

Tommy Underwood

Lefthander Tom Underwood pitched consistently well through the 1978 season, and led the team in strikeouts. But he was undoubtedly the unluckiest of the Jays' pitchers, and his 6-14 record doesn't tell the whole story.

In ten of his 14 losses, the Jays failed to score more than three runs. More unearned runs were allowed with Underwood on the mound than with any other pitcher. And in many of his well-pitched games that the Jays won, Underwood was taken out of the game before he got the decision; often he was not taken out soon enough to avoid being tagged with the loss.

His fine pitching did not go unnoticed by fans, press and the Blue Jays executive, who looked beyond the won-loss column. Many of the Jays' strongest outings came behind Underwood's fine pitching, and at the end of the season he was named Underwood had a good record in spring training this year, and hopefully his luck will improve. At just 25 years of age, Underwood has four full seasons of major league experience behind him, and a lot to offer a young team like the Blue Jays.

Underwood was acquired from the St. Louis Cardinals in 1978 along with Victor Cruz in return for Pete Vuckovich (who had a good year in 1978) and John Scott, who now plays for a Japanese team.

Rick Bosetti

All Rick Bosetti asked of the Jays was a chance to prove his ability. He got the chance and made the most of it. Bosetti has been called everything from a hot dog to a genius, but no one can deny the contributions he made to the team's improvement in 1978.

Bosetti was acquired from the St. Louis Cardinals at 1978 spring training, and made an immediate and lasting impression. It was partly because of the tee-shirts, but mostly because of the quality of his play.

He was Opening Day centrefielder and leadoff hitter, two positions he surrendered only when a sliding injury put him on the disabled list in May.

Though advance notices had almost ruled out the possibility that he could hit, Bosetti went after American League pitching with a vengeance. He was batting .297 at the end of May, his peak for the year. Shortly afterwards a sliding injury took him out of action and when he returned, his batting failed to improve though his fielding never faltered. He finished at .259.

Bosetti's excellent fielding saved many a game, though his trick catches had managerial hearts in mouths more than once. He once outran a 400-foot line drive off the bat of Texas' Bobby Bonds to preserve a 4-3 Blue Jay victory. Bosetti ranked second in the league (after Detroit's Ron LeFlore) in putouts from the outfield, and had 17 assists.

Bosetti narrowly missed winning both the Labatt's MVP award and Toronto BBWAA Rookie of the Year honours, though his excellent rookie year was noticed by other national organizations, such as Topp's.

A new statistical category was recognized by the league in 1978. Rick Bosetti was the team leader in game-winning RBI with nine of the best RBI a player can rack up. It just goes to show that Bosetti can come across when it matters, and that's important.

Bosetti and his new wife Patty have decided to settle in Toronto and raise their new family in the city.

Otto Velez

Otto "The Swatto" Velez has been with the Jays since Day One of their existence. In April 1977, Velez became the first (and so far, the only) Blue Jay to be named American League Player of the Month, after hitting .442 with five homers and 18 RBI for the month.

However, Velez carried a much lower profile in 1978 than in 1977. He appeared in 91 games as an outfielder, pinch-hitter and designated hitter. He was the most productive of all the Jays' pinch-hitters in terms of RBI to at

Goodyear GT Radial— it's writing the book on street performance.

The Customgard GT Radial . . . It's a great looking tire with bold, distinctive open white letters. But, it's also a high-performance tire in the finest Goodyear tradition. GT Radials have been winning in the IMSA Radial Challenge for the past two years.

The GT Radial can run in these high-powered events because it's packed with Goodyear know-how. The aggressive tread face performs in the wet or dry. For strength, it's built with four folded belts of Flexten cord. Flexten is made from man-made aramid fiber that, pound for pound, is stronger than steel. So, when you're looking for a real high-performance tire with radial economy and agile handling, get the GT Radial, only from Goodyear.

When we race...you win.

bats; in total, he hit nine homers and had 38 RBI with a .266 average. Velez led the club in slugging percentage with a .448 mark, and for the second consecutive year was club leader in on-base average with a .377 mark that also ranked eighth in the league.

The Puerto Rican slugger made a strong bid for a starting job at spring training this year, popping home runs all over the place in exhibition play. The Jays can always use a player who can come up cold and hit in a clutch situation, and that seems to be Velez's strongest asset.

Velez was acquired from the Yankees in the 1976 Expansion Draft.

Luis Gomez

Good defense is a subtle, but very important part of baseball. Unless a batter hits a home run, there's always a chance of stopping runs from scoring with a well-executed play. Dependable defense means that pitchers have more options when throwing to a batter; they don't always have to throw strikes. Good defense means that fewer bases are stolen. Good defense can mean that fewer runs score.

One of the areas in which the Jays were most improved in 1978 was in their defensive play. The team moved from 13th in the league in 1977 to fifth in 1978. They executed thirty more double plays. How many runs didn't score because of improved fielding? Count up the possibilities, then consider the fact that over half of the team's games were decided by only one or two runs.

Slick-fielding Luis Gomez was a big factor in this defensive improvement. Signed as a free agent after the 1977 season, Gomez appeared in 153 games at shortstop in 1978 and ranked fifth in fielding percentage among league shortstops. He combined with second baseman Dave McKay to push up double play totals, breaking Hector Torres's double play record before the first third of the season was over.

Though his hitting was never a factor in his value to the Jays, Gomez is a good bunter and led the team in sacrifice hits (19). He batted .284 for the month of August, including three three-hit games late in the month. He hit .223 for the season and after Bob Bailor was the toughest Blue Jay to strike out, fanning only 41 times in 413 at bats. In all of his six-year professional career, Gomez has never hit a home run or triple.

Alfredo Griffin

If there were an award for 'Most Talked-About Minor Leaguer', Alfredo Griffin would win it hands down. The 21-year-old Dominican was the sensation of the Jays' spring training camp.

Griffin was acquired from Cleveland in the Victor Cruz trade, along with minor leaguer Phil Lansford. The two young players were considered the cream of the Tribe's minor league crop; the Jays didn't give Cruz up lightly.

Griffin is already a major league fielder, and has the potential to become a "hitting" shortstop though his bat needs more big league experience. However, it is his great speed that attracts the Jays. As a team in 1978, the Blue Jay stole about one-third as many bases as Ron LeFlore alone. Griffin has the speed to beat out bunts, steal bases and turn the play into a running game.

Look for this talented rookie to make waves in 1979.

Griffin began his professional career in 1974, and by 1976 he had completed his rise through the minor leagues. That year he started out in Class A ball and by September was on the Cleveland roster. In 1978, Griffin batted .291 in 133 games for the Portland (PCL) club and stole 35 bases.

Jesse Jefferson

At his best, Jesse Jefferson can pitch with the best. He showed many flashes of that talent through the 1978 season, which may have been his strongest to date.

Jefferson accounted for two of the team's five shutouts (both against his former team, the Chicago White Sox), led the team in complete games (9) and ranked third in strikeouts.

In his first start at Exhibition Stadium last season, Jefferson pitched a five-hit complete game. The Jays backed him up with only one run, and Kansas City won the game 3-1 on George Brett's homer. A short time later he recorded his first major league shutout, allowing the White Sox only three hits in the best Blue Jay pitching performance up to that time.

One of his hardest-won victories showed what kind of a competitor he is when he's strong. In a classic pitchers' duel, Jefferson limited the red-hot Red Sox to only seven hits and pitched 12 innings in a 1-2, complete game victory last spring.

Unfortunately, Jefferson pitched well in many games in which he got no decision, or which were lost due to a shortage of Blue Jay runs. He finished the season 7-16 with an ERA of 4.38 and 97 strikeouts.

Jefferson was drafted from Chicago in the 1976 American League Expansion draft. He began his major league career with the Baltimore Orioles in 1973, and in 1975 was traded to the White Sox for Tony Muser. Chicago used him mainly in long relief, but with the Blue Jays he has established himself as a dependable starter. The team prepared him in 1979 spring training to take on a short relief role.

60 Years of Baseball

- On September 28, 1919 the Giants and Philadelphia set a record for the fastest nine innings ever timed. The Giants beat Philadelphia 6-1, in 51 minutes.
  - 1961 was a great year for New York hitters. Roger Maris hit 61 homers and Mickey Mantle 54.
  - In 1966, Sonny Jackson stole 49 bases for the Astros and had a .292 average to boot. These are just three of thousands of wonderful baseball moments shared by baseball fans all over North America, during the past 60 years.

Roy Howell

After a solid year at the plate and in the field, Roy Howell was named Blue Jays' Most Valuable Player for 1978.

Howell led the team in average with .270 mark, and though this was down from his 1977 average, he had improved power and production totals. In fact, he had surpassed his 1977 RBI mark by mid-July of last season. And after two seasons with the Jays, he is the club leader in All-Time average and RBI. Recognition came in the form of selection as Blue Jays' representative on the 1978 American League All-Star team (Howell went 0-for-1 as a pinch-hitter). After the season, he won the Blue Jays' MVP award and was also named Most Valuable Blue Jay by the Baseball Bulletin.

Howell started off the year with a six-game hit streak, following on the heels of an excellent spring training. He was Opening Day hero, driving in three runs against the Tigers, and had another six-game streak later in April.

However, Howell played through the year with several small injuries that were largely responsible for the drop in his average. A painful bone spur in his heel curtailed him in May, and a sore shoulder and later a jammed finger coincided with slumps at the plate.

It was still a satisfying year in many ways. He proved that he could indeed handle fielding, though he never went so far as to write "E-5" in the palm of his glove, as Graig Nettles did. The two players do share a determination to be recognized as good fielders as well as good hitters.

Howell was acquired from the Texas Rangers in 1977, and batted .302 for the year. He is one of the few expansion team players to top the magic .300 mark. His outstanding performance in 1977 was a remarkable outing against the Yankees in September 1977, when he went 5-for-6 with two doubles, two home runs and four runs scored for a total of nine RBI.

Mark Lemongello

Mark Lemongello was considered one of the National League's best young pitchers, but he was the price Houston had to pay to get Al Ashby from the Jays last December.

The 23-year-old righthander has two full seasons of major league experience. Though he doesn't have overwhelming power, he is a knowledgeable pitcher, and gained a reputation as a scrappy competitor on the mound. All those qualities make the Jays happy with their new acquisition.

Lemongello opened the '78 season with a loss to Cincinnati but quickly evened things up with a 6-1, three-hit victory over the Reds. Johnny Bench's homer accounted for the only run. He beat the Padres 4-3 on six hits in late April and in May defeated the Giants 1-0 on five hits for his first major league shutout. He picked up his eighth win of the year by pitching eight innings of relief against the Giants with a badly bruised hand. He likes to win.

Overall for the season, he was 9-14 with an ERA of 3.94. Of his 14 defeats, eight were decided by two runs or less.

He had a good, though unremarkable spring training, and was quickly ushered into a firm spot in the team's starting rotation.

A SCORING SYSTEM.

Much of the fun at a ball game is keeping your own scorecard. Blue Jays' fans can enjoy baseball to its fullest extent by keeping score as it allows you to trace the complete progress of the game and pinpoint those crucial plays that bring victory or defeat.

All you need is a basic knowledge of baseball's rules. Although there are countless scoring methods, experts use a simple code based on numbering players by position and tracing action through the use of symbols.

It's easy and fun. In fact, why not devise your own scoring system with the basic suggestions on this page. Part of the fun of scoring is improvising a system which you can decipher after the game is over.

One suggestion on player substitutions is to use a heavy or wavy line under or over a box to indicate a change, either of a pitcher or a batter. Another is if a batter flies to the right fielder, merely use the figure 9. If it is a foul fly — 9F.

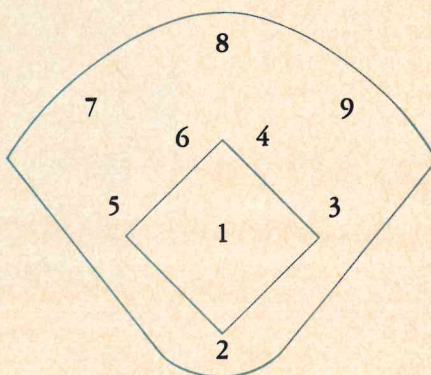

Now that you are an "official" scorer you can really enjoy Blue Jays' games. And while we're on the subject, why not pick up another scorebook before you leave the stadium, and when the team is playing out of town, you can follow the broadcast over the Blue Jays' network and keep your own scorecard right at home.

In this example, the hitter reached first base on a walk, stole second, advanced to third on pitcher's balk, scored on pitcher's wild pitch. Be sure to trace a player's complete progress around the bases. Indicate scoring plays by encircling or boxing symbol.

Just number the players as follows:

Pitcher	1
Catcher	2
First Baseman	3
Second Baseman	4
Third Baseman	5
Shortstop	6
Left Fielder	7
Center Fielder	8
Right Fielder	9
Designated Hitter	DH

And use these simple symbols for plays:

Single	—
Double	=
Triple	≡
Home Run	≡≡
Error	E
Foul Fly	F
Double Play	DP
Fielder's Choice	FC
Hit by Pitcher	HP
Wild Pitch	WP
Stolen Base	SB
Sacrifice Hit	SH
Sacrifice Fly	SF
Caught Stealing	CS
Passed Ball	PB
Balk	BK
Struck Out	K
Base on Balls	BB
Force Out	FO
Intentional Walk	IW

Team	Pos.	1	2
Rightfielder	9	4-6 W
Second Baseman	4	3 ④FC
First Baseman	3	=
Centerfielder	8	SF8
Designated Hitter	DH	K
Leftfielder	7		46
Catcher	2		DP 6-3
Third Baseman	5		≡
Shortstop	6		7
Pitcher	1
Totals R/H		1/1	1/2

Inning 1

- Walked and was forced out at second (2nd baseman to shortstop)
- Reached first on fielder's choice when runner was forced out, advanced to third on double by third-place hitter, scored on fourth-place hitter's sacrifice fly
- Doubled and did not advance further
- Flied out to center field scoring runner on third
- Struckout — end of inning

Inning 2

- Singled, later forced out at second (2nd baseman to shortstop in first half of double play)
- Hit into double play (2nd baseman to shortstop to 1st baseman)
- Hit home run
- Flied out to left fielder — end of inning

MAKE PEOPLE TALK BEHIND YOUR BACK.

When you ride past on a Yamaha Special, people notice. And the one they notice most is this one. Our XS650 Special.

It's not our largest, or most expensive. But it is our most popular street bike. And possibly the most popular motorcycle in North America.

Like all our Specials, the 650 is designed to be ridden in a more natural, relaxed position. So you look as relaxed as you are.

The mellow throb of those megaphone exhausts doesn't change the impression. It's the sound of the classic vertical twin engine. Wonderfully simple and reliable, with a wide range of power. So it pulls like a freight train.

How does it handle? Even the experts are amazed. Motorcyclist magazine writes, "We found the huge rear tire and the altered geometry on the 650 Special made it even more neutral and precise than the already fine handling standard."

And how does it look? The sleek teardrop tank, the special paint and chrome, and that clean, classic profile all say one thing. Style.

So when people talk behind your back, you won't have to worry about what they're saying.

BRACK ELECTRONICS LTD.

THE WINNING TEAM IN STEREO COMPONENTS

harman/kardon

DUAL 721 is the finest there is in automatic turntables. This is a simple statement of fact. In its price range there is no turntable/arm on the market which renders as flawless a performance as the DUAL. This is why a leading manufacturer of an esoteric fine quality cartridge, selling in Canada in excess of $700.00, recommends the DUAL ARM. When you buy a DUAL you pay much less than its true value.

hk

670 Harman/kardon am/fm stereo receiver

Engineering has one goal to design the best in Audio Components. There are hundreds of stereo receivers on the market. But very few which stand out from the Lot, and we, at Brack Electronics, found none which equal the HK 670 in musical performance. Those of you who like specs, the specs of the HK 670 pitch an easy home run.

Not only do we offer the finest in Audio Equipment, but we also firmly believe in being a leader in best value & prices.

Minor Leagues

There's an air of optimism pervading the Blue Jays' farm systems as they embark on their second year.

The Jays fielded four minor league teams in 1978, one Triple-A, one Class A, one Rookie and one Instructional League team. Rather than add a Double-A team in 1979, the Jays have added the Class A Kinston Eagles (Carolina League) because the majority of minor league players owned by the Jays are at that level. It's a sort of baby-boom approach to baseball.

Syracuse Chiefs

League: International (Class AAA)
Finish: Eighth Place
Won-Lost: 50-90

Despite their last-place finish, the Chiefs' success was marked by the numbers of Triple-A alumni who made it to the major league level in 1978 with some success. Foremost among these was Victor Cruz, whose relief magic took the majors by storm; Victor was later traded to Cleveland. Al Woods' marked improvement at the plate and in the field signalled his return to the parent Jays in mid-season. He let his bat re-establish his major league status.

Other players made trips to Toronto after September 1. Butch Alberts left Syracuse with a .299 average and 71 RBI (best on the club). Tom Buskey was selected to the International League All-Star team after leading the Chiefs with a 3.03 ERA and nine saves, and is a strong candidate for a place in the Jays' bullpen.

Other outstanding Triple-A players were Dan Ainge, who jumped from high school to Triple-A in one season. After a slow start, Ainge came on in the second half of the season to bat .313 for the month of August and showed steady improvement in the field. Mike Darr and Butch Edge pitched well for a losing team and showed encouraging maturity on the mound.

In 1979, look for these players to help nudge the Chiefs upward in the standings.

Dunedin Blue Jays

League: Florida State (Class A)
Finish: Fourth Place
Won-Lost: 59-83

The Blue Jays fielded their first full season Class A club, and did their part in filling mid-season vacancies at Syracuse with some fine prospects.

Managed by former major league infielder Denis Menke and coached by Dennis Holmberg, the Dunedin club was mostly graduates of last year's Utica team. Against their more experienced opposition, Dunedin fared much better in the second half of the schedule, finishing in 4th place a few games below .500.

First baseman Greg "Boomer" Wells was called to Syracuse in mid-July while batting .313 with 13 home runs and 80 RBI (his RBI total led the league at that time). Pitcher Randy Weins of Kamloops, B.C.

went north to the Tribe after posting a 5-3 record with nine saves and an impressive 1.48 ERA.

Other Dunedin regulars on their way up include Fay Thompson, who had 19 homers, shortstop Eduardo Dennis who batted .320 during the last six weeks of the season, Jay Robertson and his 2.31 ERA, and 1978 College All-American pitcher David Steib (1.71 ERA).

Utica Blue Jays

League: New York - Pennsylvania
Finish: Second Place
Won-Lost: 37-34

Led by league All-Stars Charles Puleo and Andre Wood, managed by Duane Larson, the Utica Jays finished in second place in the Yawkey Division of the New York-Penn league.

Puleo, a righthanded pitcher from Rick Cerone's alma mater, Seton Hall, finished with a 2.33 ERA and a 10-3 record. Wood, an outfielder who was converted to an infielder during the 1978-1979 Instructional League season, hit .303 with seven home runs.

First baseman Tim Thompson, the Jays' second round draft pick in the 1978 Free Agent draft, had a fine year hitting .292 with 10 homes and 48 RBI. Catcher Mike Lebo, a first round draft choice in 1978, hit .248 with eight home runs and 46 RBI.

Medicine Hat Blue Jays

League: Pioneer (Rookie)

Finish: Seventh Place

Won-Lost: 28-40

The Western Blue Jays boasted five .300 or better hitters.

"Shaker Mo" Lloyd Moseby, the second player selected in the June 1978 Free Agent draft, batted .308 for the year while leading the club with 10 homers and 17 stolen bases.

Moseby is an outfielder. Brian Milner, who was Toronto's starting catcher in their 24-10 romp over the Baltimore Orioles last June, owns a .444 American League average from his brief tryout and batted .308 for the Medicine Hat Jays. Bob Silverman batted .339, Albert Castillo batted .315 and Windsor's Mike Lessard topped off the Med Hat Jays' .300-plus hitters.

As for pitching, Richard Morgan, righthander, had the lowest ERA in the league - 1.94. Jesse Flores (7-1) had a 2.68 mark as a starter and Torontonian Bob Oravec (5-1), also a starter, finished with an ERA of 3.83.

WITH APOLOGIES TO GEORGE ORWELL AND 1984. WE THINK HE GOT IT ALL WRONG.

George Orwell saw a bleak world coming in 1984. A spartan world with little room for personal pleasures and rewards. Great fiction, but fiction nonetheless.

We've been thinking about 1984 too.

For example, the 280ZX, like all our 1979 Datsuns, has been designed and built to take you happily into 1984 and beyond. Our advanced quality control systems are totally integrated into every production step, and our anti-corrosion protection carries a comprehensive guarantee. Our long service intervals are among the best in the industry.

We pioneered safety engineering with governments in North America.

Can you think of any better assurance that long-term dependability is built right in?

But durability doesn't mean much unless the cars meet all your future personal requirements of driving. So we've refined the luxuries and increased the conveniences that make owning a car a prideful thing. Interior dimensions, visibility, handling, instrumentation and decor have all been improved.

We see a lot of 1979 Datsun owners still driving their Datsuns in 1984. Not because they have to, but because they want to.

So smile
George Orwell
wherever you are.

Post-Game Show

When teleporters are invented, you can be sure that the Jays will be the first major league team to install them in the Stadium.

But until then, we all have to get to and from Blue Jays games with the least amount of fuss and frustration.

No matter how you get to the games - by TTC, GO Train or car - it's a fact that trying to get on the same streetcar with 30,000 other people, or trying to get out of the parking lots, is an experience we can all live without. After all, you come to the game to relax.

Rather than leave the game early (and miss some of the most exciting moments of play), why not wait for a few minutes and enjoy the Blue Jays post-game show? The scoreboard show will fill you in on out-of-town results and league standings, recap the Blue Jays' game you just saw with replays and commentary (records, outstanding performances, etc.), and entertain you with video clips and camera coverage of the crowd. It's also a good time to find out about future Blue Jays' special dates and promotions. You can buy tickets for any future game in the advance ticket offices on the concourse level behind Gate Nine before leaving.

Another fun way to pass a few minutes is to take the kids down to the players' exit (west side of the stadium) for an autograph session. The kids can meet their favourite players and get their programs autographed.

Or stroll over to Ontario Place for a relaxing walk by the water and a snack.

When you decide to leave, the parking lots will be almost empty, the TTC stops will be sparsely populated, and you can cruise home relaxed and happy.

Seats

Exhibition Stadium is still a very young stadium, and the seats still have a lot of spring in them (ouch!!) don't they?

When you get carried away at the game, watch out for elbows hanging over your seat arm before jumping up. If you leap up without checking you could clip that six-foot-six biker sitting next to you - or worse, your Think self-defense, too. You don't want to develop 'Stadium Elbow' (did you have any idea how un-funny your funny bone really is?). So if your neighbour seems a little excitable, keep those elbows close to your sides!

Radios

Toronto is blessed with excellent radio coverage of all Blue Jays games. We all enjoy listening to Tom Cheek and Early Wynn's pre-game interviews, and their play-by-play coverage of the game.

But if you want to have your radio in the stands with you, remember that many fans like to concentrate on the game with nothing louder than the munching of peanuts around them. The radio can distract not only other fans, but also the players on the field.

So please, if you want to listen to your radio during the game, use headphones or an earplug and respect your neighbours' fashion of enjoying the game.

Ontario Science Centre

So you always hated science class in school? Match wits with a computer at tic-tac-toe (and learn about binary functions at the same time), or take a walk through the Balance Room and learn about your inner ear, or match your muscle against horsepower . . . and discover that you're enjoying science.

The Science Centre is open seven days a week (except Christmas) from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. There's lots of parking ($1.00) or you can take the northbound Pape bus from the Pape subway station. Wheelchairs and strollers are available free to visitors.

Families $4.00, adults $2.00, students (with student card) $1.00, children 12 and under 50¢, and senior citizens free.

For more information, call the Ontario Science Centre at 429-4100.

Ontario Place

Walk out of the Stadium, look south for the glittering baseball on the water, and that's Ontario Place, just a short walk away.

Ontario Place is a man-made chain of island parks, connected by walkways and bridges, that is home to theatres, marinas, fine restaurants, music, playgrounds and waterfront fun. It's the perfect spot for before or after the game relaxation. (Don't forget that during the CNE, your Blue Jays advance ticket gets you free access to the CNE grounds and to Ontario Place!)

Ontario Place opens officially for the season on May 17, but the Trillium restaurant is open for every ball game from April 13 on this year.

Parking off Lakeshore Boulevard, $2.00. Adults $2.50, Children 12 and under (with adult) 50¢ and Senior Citizens free.

Easy access for wheelchairs and strollers, wheelchairs provided free, no stroller rentals.

For more information, call 965-7711.

Ontario Place is your best entertainment value.

Ontario Place is just a base hit from the ball park. Come on over before the game or after and beat the traffic; relax over lunch or dinner. We've got three villages of restaurants, pubs and lounges with waterside decks and patios. There's live entertainment and dancing.

Enjoy top entertainment at the Forum, giant-screen movies at Cinesphere, three theatres in the Pavilions, Childrens Village and Water Play Area, the Bandshell and more. All free with your admission.

Don't miss our newest attraction, WATERSLIDE. Bring your bathing suit. Half an hour for one ticket.

Trillium Restaurants and Lounge are open from April 13.

Enjoy superb food, beautiful surroundings, a magnificent view and reasonable prices. Dress is casual. All major credit cards honoured. Phone 965-7731 or 364-1236 for information or reservations.

The house was built before the First World War by Sir Henry Pellatt, a Canadian millionaire who put himself in debt so deeply just building the house that the city repossessed it in 1924 for back taxes. (You can hear the complete history of the house on a tape-recorded, self-guided tour available there.)

It has been operated for the last few years by the Kiwanis Club, a charitable organization, and they have put a lot of effort into restoring parts of the palatial mansion, such as Lady Pellatt's apartments, to their former grandeur.

There's lots of free parking available at Casa Loma, or you can take the northbound Spadina bus from the Spadina subway stop. The driver will let you off at the foot of the hill and as you climb the steps, your first view of Casa Loma - Pellatt's folly - will be well worth the walk up.

Casa Loma is open from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. all year round. There are no wheelchair or stroller rentals.

Metro Zoo

"Meet the gorilla your dreams", say the ads. But even if a cuddly ape isn't what you want, you shouldn't miss the Metro Zoo. It's brand-new, beautiful, and lots of fun for everyone in the family.

Acres of suburban land are sculpted into something resembling the animals' native habitats. Behind natural barriers the animals roam free and unfettered. You'll find very few bars and no cramped cages in this zoo. A tribe of lions wanders the 'savannah' beside a lengthy group of giraffes; monkeys chatter and great apes bellow in the monkey house; exotic birds flutter among equally unusual trees and plants. Native North American animals mix with their Asian and African cousins. In all, a great place and a lot of fun for everybody.

Stroller rentals are $1.00, and wheelchairs are provided free. It's very easy to get around with both.

Parking is ample, and costs only $1.00 for the day.

The season at the Zoo starts Easter weekend and runs until Labour Day. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. Adults $3.00, youths 12 to 17 and senior citizens $1.50. Children under five are admitted free and children six to eleven get in for only 50¢.

The Zoo has special feature days all through their regular season, and don't forget that the Zoo is open all year for skiing, marathon runs and hiking as well as all the usual Zoo activities. Parking is free after Labour Day.

For more information, call the Zoo at 284-8181.

Harbourfront

Harbourfront is much more than a place where boats come in; it's a whole complex of indoor/outdoor activities, leisure and cultural, that stretches along the waterfront.

This once-derelect area has been transformed into a beautiful and exciting recreational complex of converted warehouses, parks, craft workshop areas, and much more.

For specific activities, call the Harbourfront Information Line at 364-5665.

Stepping Out

Toronto has come a long way since the Boring '50's, when pizza was considered exotic and you had to go downtown to one of the 'dowager empress' hotels to get a meal that was a cut above average fare.

Things have changed. We now have so many good restaurants (not to mention some of most innovative chefs and restaurateurs in the world!) that there is no excuse for you to accept anything less than the best when you dine out.

In our 1979 feature, we'll take you on a tour of downtown because you are downtown. We've divided the downtown core into several small areas, and described each along with how to get there. Every place we discuss is less than half an hour from the ballpark by car or TTC.

Here's your chance, visitors, to break out of the hotel syndrome and explore Toronto. For native Torontonians who don't get downtown often, this is your chance to discover some of the great things that are happening in one of North America's most vibrant cities: your Toronto.

Old Toronto

This is Toronto's most famous theatre district, home of the O'Keefe Centre and the St. Lawrence Centre. It is also the oldest part of the city, featuring the St. Lawrence Farmers' Market and the old Town Hall. It has been lovingly restored and carefully rejuvenated; today, it is one of Toronto's liveliest showpieces.

Food at the restaurants, bars and wine bars clustered along Front Street, Wellington Street (one block north) and The Esplanade (one block south) is uniformly excellent - and the prices are reasonable. There's a tremendous variety offered, so you should really take your time and decide exactly what you want.

There are excellent steakhouses, with bars that serve up great burgers and sandwiches along with a game of darts or backgammon. Fresh seafood around the corner. Wine bars and cafes where you can sample some of the world's great vintage wines by the glass while nibbling Brie, paté or escargot. You'll find French cuisine, both classic and innovative, right beside a restaurant featuring hearty European fare.

Lunches usually feature the same food at about half the evening prices; and don't forget that many restaurants have an attached bar or cafe where the same food is offered in a more casual atmosphere at a lower price.

The restaurants are comfortable, the staffs are friendly and professional, and children are welcome.

If you have only a few days in the city, this is one of the 'must' areas to visit, both for its historical importance and beauty, and the food.

To get there, take the King Street car east to Yonge Street, then walk south to Wellington and east on Wellington - two short blocks. Or ask for directions to the O'Keefe Centre.

Chinatown

To call it just Chinatown is doing this area an injustice. You'll find great Chinese food, true; but you'll find the Art Gallery of Ontario and it's restaurant, the Toronto garment district and lots of little stores selling goods from around the world.

By streetcar: take the Queen or King streetcars, transfer to the Spadina northbound bus, and ask the driver to let you off at Dundas Street. And there you are . . . in one of North America's largest Chinese communities. It extends from Spadina and Dundas east to Bay and Dundas.

The majority of Chinese in Toronto are first-generation, and that means that the food is as authentic as can be. The immense variety of Chinese cuisine, from the elegant and familiar Mandarin and Cantonese to the hot and spicy Szechwan is well represented. Prices range from the inexpensive, in the small, less fancy restaurants, to the higher priced plush lounges.

But the overall quality of the food is excellent. It's almost impossible to go wrong here - if the people inside look happy, you're on the right track. If they're happy and Chinese, so much the better. Don't be afraid to stray from the chow mein wasteland - if something at the next table looks interesting, order it. And ask your waiter for suggestions.

An added attraction of Chinatown, if you've some time to spend in the area, are the shops. Mostly family owned and operated, they sell exquisite imported Oriental exotica. Silks and satins, jade, ivory and onyx. How about some hand-embroidered silk pyjamas? You never know. You might need them. And goodness knows the prices are right - items are often cheaper here than they are four blocks uptown.

Yonge-Church-Carlton

Yonge and Church run parallel, one block apart. College crosses Yonge and on the east side is renamed Carlton, best known for Maple Leaf Gardens which sits squarely between Yonge and Church.

On all three streets are fine restaurants, pubs, and wine bars. Excellent steakhouses and Continental restaurants cater to the Gardens crowd and the CBC, which is nearby.

South on Church from Carlton is a good area to check out. So is Yonge Street below College/Carlton, and above Gerrard Street.

If you go east on Carlton to Parliament, you're in Cabbagetown, which is one of the city's most interesting neighbourhoods. There are some fine designer boutiques and galleries for shopping on Carlton, and several interesting pub/restaurants.

To get there, take the King streetcar to the Yonge subway and get off at the College Street subway stop. Walk east, and there you are! To go to Cabbagetown, ride the Carlton streetcar or walk the six blocks.

Queen Street

One of the city's most interesting streets, and one of the oldest, this is an area in transition.

The people who have come to live and work here have retained the old fashioned 'Main Street' look that is its charm, while placing it in the cultural vanguard of Toronto life. It's Toronto's version of New York's SoHo, and it's fun.

You'll find that it isn't as slick and expensive as Yorkville, but here your finger is on the pulse of Toronto's art and theatre communities.

Further west on Queen are several other very interesting lunch bars and restaurants, and great shopping. It's fun to go and browse (many of the items sold in these shops are one-of-a-kind) and then wander off for lunch.

On Queen Street East around Sherbourne are auction rooms, antique furniture and clothing shops, decorators' shops, book stores, and so on. The dining is a little thin, but ask one of the boutique owners if anything new has opened up that they would recommend. They always know what's good.

To get to Queen West, take the King car to Spadina, take the Spadina bus northbound to Queen, then walk east from Spadina. If you want to go to Queen East, transfer on to the Queen streetcar at Spadina and ride it right across. You'll see the New City Hall, Simpson's - lots of Toronto landmarks.

Bloor Street and Yorkville

What a variety of things Bloor Street has to offer! From Bloor West at Bathurst, where you'll find all kinds of European and Asian food, to the sleek and chic Yorkville area.

If it's Hungarian or East Indian food you crave, take the Bathurst streetcar to Bloor Street and hop off. Walking east on Bloor you'll come across several restaurants offering fine European food. Any one is a safe bet. The prices are moderate, the servings healthy, and we assure you that any cook worth his or her salt would rather die than put anything substandard on the table. The same applies to the Indian restaurants along here.

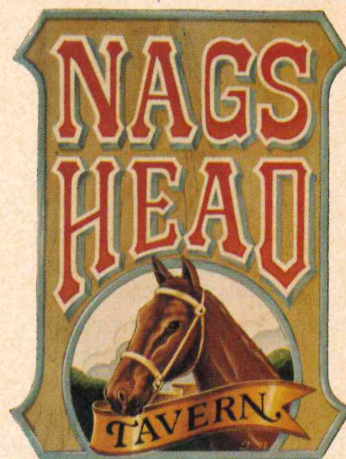

Yorkville: Take the Bathurst streetcar to the Bloor subway, go east on the Bloor line to Bay. When you surface, you'll be in Yorkville. Cumberland Avenue, Yorkville Avenue, Hazelton and Hazelton Lanes, Bay Street, Bloor Street and St. Thomas Street offer the finest dining in the city. This is night-out, big-bucks time, unless you go for lunch. But you'll enjoy yourself immensely.

Other Suggestions

How about a picnic? Take your supplies to High Park or Ontario Place for a before-game or post-game snack al fresco; you can listen to the music from the Forum and let the kids play.

The St. Lawrence Market is located at Front Street and Jarvis. To get there, see 'Front Street' in this article. The St. Lawrence Market is a newly-renovated indoor market that sells all sorts of goodies, like Kensington, and it's only a short haul from there to the ballpark.

Dinner Theatre

Toronto has several comedy/theatre companies that offer a good dinner and a show for one price.

Second City on Lombard Street is the best for comedy; old Angelo's offers cabaret; and George's gets name entertainment to go with their fine food. Look in the Yellow Pages for others.

Wine Bars and Pubs

Toronto has been sprouting these left and right in the last few years, and they're very good. They feature stand-up bars where you can sample imported beers or fine wines by the glass or bottle, and good food - everything from Scotch eggs to quiche to giant salads. Enjoy a game of darts or backgammon, or just the conversation and convivial atmosphere.

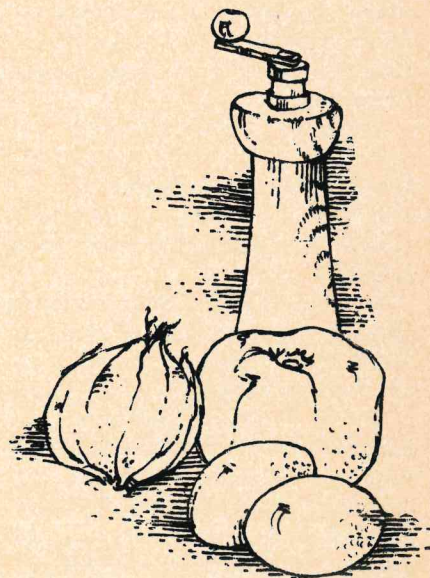

Look for these spots adjoining restaurants. The best are generally affiliated with a dining room.

They're a great European custom that's been an enjoyable addition to the Toronto scene.

Restaurant Guides and Reviews

Toronto's restaurant reviewers are every bit as good as the restaurants, and you can trust them. Toronto Life, Toronto Calendar and most newspapers (on weekends) run independent reviews. Or you can pay a couple of dollars for a book on Toronto restaurants. (Note: Always check the date of review! Things can change) The Yellow Pages are also a good referral guide. Or ask shopowners or store clerks. They generally know the area and can refer you to someplace you'll like.

The Blue Jays on Radio

Tom and Early Blue Jays' broadcasting team

The Toronto Blue Jays' Radio Network goes into its third year with a list of 21 stations carrying the play-by-play from Sault Ste. Marie to Brockport, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

Returning for their third season is the broadcast team of Tom Cheek and Hall of Fame pitcher Early Wynn. Cheek and Wynn have proved to be a highly entertaining and informative broadcasting team. Wynn, who handled most of the colour commentating, is especially popular with fans with his unpredictable comments.

Cheek, who is 39 and a native of Pensacola, Fla., spent his first winter in Canada at his Burlington home. But he's an old hand at snow shovelling as he joined Jays after living in Burlington, Vermont.

In Burlington, Vt., Cheek was corporate sales manager and sports director for a group of three radio stations from 1968 to 1976. He did extensive sports broadcasting for the University of Vermont and from 1974 to 1976 was also the swing (alternate) broadcaster for the radio games of the Montreal Expos.

During the off-season Cheek spent much of January and February on the road. He was part of the Blue Jays' Caravan which travelled throughout the province and New York State and estimates he made more than 100 appearances.

Wynn spent the off-season in Nokomis, Fla., which is about an hour's drive from the Blue Jays' Florida home. He spent the winter getting his golf handicap down, fishing and getting his camper ready for training camp.

The 59-year-old Wynn, a native of Hartford, Ala., was one of the game's toughest and most feared competitors, winning 20 games or more five times in his career, which covered four decades.

Wynn, the last man to win 300 games and only the 14th in the history of the game, holds the major league record for most years pitching (23). He broke in with the Washington Senators in 1939 and except for the 1940 and '45 seasons was a big league hurler through 1963 with the Senators, Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox.

Wynn appeared in two World Series with the White Sox (1959) and Indians (1954) and seven times was named to the All-Star team. After winning his 300th game he retired and was a coach for the Indians and Minnesota Twins from 1964 through 1969.

Cheek and Wynn will be on 15 minutes before every home and away Blue Jays' game with a pre-game show and will conclude with a 15-minute post-game show.

Rules of Interest

Save Rule. Saves shall be awarded to relief pitchers under the following criteria:

Rule (10:20) tells the official scorer to credit a pitcher with a save when he meets all 3 of the following conditions:

- 1 - He is the finishing pitcher in a game won by his club; and
- 2 - He is not the winning pitcher; and
- 3 - He qualifies under one of the following conditions:
  - a) He enters the game with a lead of no more than three runs and pitches for at least one inning; or
  - b) He enters the game with the potential tying run either on base, or at bat, or on deck (that is, the potential tying run is either already on base or is one of the first two batsmen he faces); or
  - c) He pitches effectively for at least three innings.

American League Curfews. No inning of an American League night game can start after 1:00 a.m., local time. Any inning started prior to 1:00 a.m. can be completed.

Saturday night games in Baltimore, Boston, and New York must be halted at 11:59 p.m., local time, regardless of conditions. In other night games in Baltimore, no inning can start after 11:59 p.m., but any inning started before that time may be completed.

Any game, regardless of length, called because of the time curfew, becomes a suspended game and must be completed from the exact point of interruption before the teams play their next scheduled game against each another.

Designated Hitter For The Pitcher Rule - a hitter may be designated to bat for the starting pitcher and all subsequent pitchers in any game without otherwise affecting the status of the pitcher(s) in the game. A Designated Hitter for the pitcher must be selected prior to the game and must be included in the lineup card presented to the umpire-in-chief.

It is not mandatory that a club designate a hitter for the pitcher, but failure to do so prior to the game precludes the use of a Designated Hitter for that game.

Pinch hitters for a Designated Hitter may be used. Any substitute hitter for a Designated Hitter himself becomes a Designated Hitter. A replaced Designated Hitter shall not re-enter the game in any capacity.

The Designated Hitter may be used defensively, continuing to bat in the same position in the batting order, but the pitcher must then bat in the place of the substituted defensive player, unless more than one substitution is made, and the manager must then designate their spots in the batting order.

A runner may be substituted for the Designated Hitter and the runner assumes the role of Designated Hitter.

A Designated Hitter is "locked" into the batting order. No multiple substitutions may be made that will alter the batting rotation of the Designated Hitter.

Once the game pitcher is switched from the mound to a defensive position this move shall terminate the Designated Hitter role for the remainder of the game.

Once a pinch hitter bats for any player in the batting order and then enters the game to pitch, this move shall terminate the Designated Hitter role for the remainder of the game.

Once the game pitcher bats for the Designated Hitter this move shall terminate the Designated Hitter role for the remainder of the game.

Once a Designated Hitter assumes a defensive position this move shall terminate the Designated Hitter role for the remainder of the game.

Suspended Game Rules. A game terminated by curfew or by a pre-arranged time limit is a suspended game only if it has progressed far enough to be an official game (i.e., 4 1/2 to 5 innings).

A game terminated by light failure is a suspended game anytime after it begins.

Suspended games shall be resumed at the exact point of suspension immediately preceding the next scheduled single game between the same two clubs on the same ground. If this is not possible, other provisions for resumption are specified in American League regulation 3.8.

A game called at the end of a completed inning after nine innings for any reason shall be a suspended game. This rule became effective in 1969. Formerly, the game would have been declared a tie and replayed in its entirety at a later date.

The completion of a suspended game is the continuation of the original game. Any player may be replaced by a player who had not been in the game prior to the suspension. No player removed before the suspension may be returned to the lineup.

Night Games and Twi-Night Double-Headers. Any game scheduled to start after 6:00 p.m. will be considered a night game. If a game is scheduled to start at 6:00 p.m. and is delayed by rain, or for any other reason, it will be considered a day game. If a game is scheduled to start at 6:01 p.m. it will be considered a night game. Twi-night double-headers shall be included in double-header statistics and shall also be considered two night games. When afternoon and night games are played on the same date (separate admissions), the games shall be day and night and count as single games.

Suspended Games. For the purpose of this rule, all performances in the completion of a suspended game shall be considered as occurring on the original date of the game.

Rookie Qualification. A player shall be considered a rookie unless, during the previous season or seasons, he has (a) exceeded 130 at bats or 50 innings pitched in the major leagues; or (b) accumulated more than 45 days on the active roster of a major league club or clubs during the period of a 25-man limit (excluding time in military service).

Player Limits. 40 until opening day, when the number must be reduced to 25 until September 1, when it again becomes 40.

Consecutive Hitting Streaks. A consecutive hitting streak shall not be terminated if the plate appearance results in a base on balls, hit batsman, defensive interference or a sacrifice bunt. A sacrifice fly shall terminate the streak.

Consecutive-Game Hitting Streaks. A consecutive-game hitting streak shall not be terminated if all the player's plate appearances (one or more) result in a base on balls, hit batsman, defensive interference or a sacrifice bunt. The streak shall terminate if the player has a sacrifice fly and not a hit.

Consecutive-Game Playing Streak.

A consecutive-game playing streak shall be extended if the player plays one half-inning on defense, or if he completes a time at bat by reaching base or being put out. A pinch-running appearance only shall not extend the streak. If a player is ejected from a game by an umpire before he can comply with the requirements of this rule, his streak shall continue.

Scoring Rules: Pinch-Hitters

(Adopted by the Official Records Committee)

Otto Velez is the ideal pinch hitter. He can come up cold in a clutch situation, and produce.

A player shall be considered a pinch-hitter only if he enters the game as a substitute batter and then only on his first time at bat which must be before he becomes a fielder. (If the team bats around and a pinch-hitter comes up a second time in the inning in which he first appeared, he will not be considered a pinch-hitter during that second time up.)

A substitute hitter for a designated hitter is both a pinch-hitter and a designated hitter on his first time at bat. On subsequent trips to the plate he is a designated hitter only. (Until now such a substitute hitter had not been considered a pinch-hitter. American League pinch-hitting records for 1973-1975 will be recompiled to conform with this new definition.)
